WEATHER UPDATE

Drivers know how weather affects roads

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Anyone who had to negotiate Wednesday and Thursday's slippery roads know what Jim Elstone's weather charts have to say: We had a lot of rain followed by a drop in temperatures which caused the roads to turn into ribbons of skating rinks.

On Wednesday, January 17, the temperature reached 7.5 degrees Celsius, almost reaching the record high of 8.9 degrees. Along with the warm weather came 26.4 mm of rain—"pretty substantial for January," Mr. Elstone says.

Usually a winter rain is followed by wet snow and colder temperatures. However, the mercury dropped first, freezing the rain before a centimetre of snow could fall. The resulting havoc on the roads kept the tow trucks busy.

These odd conditions may also have played a part in the tragic snowmobiling deaths on Saturday night. (See story elsewhere in the Echo for details.)

After the rain washed most of the snow cover off the land and lakes, the temperature dropped to -15 on both Friday and Saturday. This created a thin sheen of ice on open water. When it was topped by the centimetre of snow, "it might lead one to believe

Official plan talks begin in harmony

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Initial steps toward establishing an official plan for Haliburton County were taken last week when councillors and staff from each of the 10 municipalities met with representatives of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

This is not the first attempt at a county-wide official plan, but in the past municipalities have had difficulties overcoming differences and coming to an agreement on how it should be done. This time, each municipality agrees that co-operation is the key.

The catalyst prompting the county to try it again came from consultants doing the county's economic development study. It was recommended that this effort is of utmost importance because only three of the county's municipalities have official county," said Bradley, adding that of priority is "the retention of water quality and the esthetics of the water and wooded landscapes which are of paramount importance to the maintenance of the local tourist-based economy."

The purpose of a county official plan is not to restrict municipalities but "to aid in consistent planning, and development throughout the entire county," he said.

"Having spent a great deal of time, effort and money on the County Economic Development Strategy, it would seem rather foolhardy to me if we did not put into practise what we have learned, and anticipate what should happen within our county in the coming years. An official plan would set out the ways and means of setting and maintaining goals and objectives of economic development within the county."

Maladey described an official plan

"We must set aside our sacred cows and work together for the betterment of the county."

plans: Anson, Hindon and Minden, Dysart and Cardiff. Last November, county councillors voted unanimously to take another shot at an official plan, and last week's meetings were the first step in that process.

Discussion was spread out over three meetings held in Stanhope, Gooderham and Minden. Committee chairman and Cardiff Reeve Maurice Bradley opened each meeting with a presentation. Terry Turner and planner Ruth Maladey, both of the Field Services Branch of the ministry, outlined the purpose of a county official plan, and discussed how it will affect both the county and the individual municipalities.

Bradley said an official plan would provide the private sector, public agencies and municipalities with a guide for economic development, waste management, social services, health, and children's aid. He also stressed the importance of tourism to Haliburton's economy.

The plan "will provide direction for orderly and consistent development, which will not compromise the natural scenic beauty of the area, nor the recreational character of our

as a general "framework for development," to be used together with each municipality's more specific zoning bylaws.

"Municipalities are not giving up their planning responsibilities," she said.

Conflicts which could occur between existing and future uses of land are minimized through a plan, which addresses the county's important policies. Adding to policies listed by Bradley, Maladey said the plan could cover lake capacity, transportation, water and sewer services, and provincial interests such as housing and flood plain policy statements.

Using waste management as an example, Maladey pointed out the need for Haliburton County to develop a site for waste disposal. "With official plan powers, I think the county has a greater latitude to do that."

The new responsibility of a county official plan will mean additional cost for staffing, she said. Also, the amount of time county councillors spend on planning issues will increase, "and they have to be ready

Dysart condos raise planning issues

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

A proposed expansion at Sir Sam's Ski Area has prompted discussion on problems with Dysart et al's official plan.

Owner Bob Bishop approached Dysart council at its January 8 meeting to discuss expansion plans which include the construction of a residential condominium on a 9.5 acre piece of property at the top of the ski hill.

But the municipality's official plan policies on condominiums are presently too general. Dysart has just started work on amending the plan policies "to make them tighter," said municipal Planning Administrator Jody Ainsworth.

Council "wants it very defined so developers know specifically what they're dealing with and what to address. Right now the plan just says condominiums 'may be considered.' It's not very specific," she said.

Bishop told council he'd like to work with Ainsworth in amending the plan policies. Complaining about new Ministry of Environment rules regarding septic systems, Bishop said he can now only develop half as much property as he could a year ago in the same situation.

Also, ministry conditions dictate that if a condominium's septic system fails, the municipality must take over responsibility. Bishop suggested the municipality should set up a "special condominium fund in cash to prevent any problems with this."

Whatever a developer must pay to set up a water and septic system, "he should give an equal amount in cash to the municipality," said Bishop. "When we first proposed this to the ministry, they thought half of the cost might be sufficient, and a bond would do, but I think it would have to be in cash. It would grow and would always be available in the event a disaster did take place."

"I just want the blessing of council to go forward in working with Jody and the planner to develop an amendment to the official plan," he said.

Then-Councillor Glen Hodgson said Bishop's suggestion is worth considering, and commented there is a shortage of rental units in Haliburton.

Deputy-Reeve (now Reeve) Bill Davis praised Bishop for all his improvements at Sir Sam's Ski Area. "Everybody here congratulates you on what you've done out there. You have provided an attraction which helps our economy."

Referring to delays on Haliburton's sewage treatment plant expansion plan, Bishop said "It boggles me how the MOE can bog down the sewage extension and still continue to allow growth."

He noted that Sir Sam's is a private business. "We accept no funds, no loans, and no grants. It's

Fire protection increase is questioned by Dysart

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Dysart et al council is questioning a $1,000 increase for fire protection from Monmouth Township.

The increase—raising stand-by fees for protecting Dysart's Harcourt Township to $6,000—was considered by Dysart municipal council at its regular meeting on January 8. The Monmouth department also services half of Cardiff Township, and its fees have increased as well.

"The results we've had from Monmouth have been good," commented Dysart Councillor Lloyd

Leadbeater. (The meeting was held before a shuffling of council members, when Leadbeater became Deputy-Reeve, Bill Davis became Reeve, and Glen Hodgson retired.)

"But is that a fair offer?" asked Councillor Hodgson, pointing out that Monmouth had already raised its fire agreement with Dysart by $1,000 the previous year.

"They couldn't be asking that much when they had a large increase last year," he said. "We should ask them to reconsider. Costs haven't increased that much."

Council also considered its

Snowmobile tragedy on Halls Lake kills three Scarborough friends

by MARTHA PERKINS

Three childhood friends from Scarborough drowned on Saturday night when the snowmobile they were on went into open water on Halls Lake.

Kenneth Chicoine, 26, his sister-in-law Betty Ann Devouge, 27 and her boyfriend Gary Hotton, 26 were all on one snowmobile travelling from a fish hut to a cottage. At approximately 7:45 p.m., the snowmobile left the ice where Kennis River flows into Halls Lake on the east side and the three drowned.

The Devouge family has a cottage on the lake and after dinner there, the three went to an ice hut. Shortly afterwards, they drove back towards shore for a planned visit with friends. Those became concerned when the trio was late and went to the fish hut to inquire when Chicoine, Devouge and Hotton had left. Really worried by now, they searched the area and saw three snowmobile helmets floating in the open water, says Minden OPP information officer Const. Mike Maybee.

The police were called and arrived at 9:30. By two o'clock, two police divers—one was Const. Barry Connolly from Minden, the other from Apsley detachment—had recovered the bodies.

Maybee said that after last week's rain, the lake had no snow cover so the snowmobile's tracks weren't found. "The problem with glare ice is that unless you have steel studs on your snowmobile track, you just slide when you brake."

Budget is getting tighter for Monmouth fire crew agreements to provide fire protection for the municipalities of Snowdon and Glamorgan, priced at $2,500 and $1,500 respectively in 1989.

Normally, Dysart increases its stand-by fees to these areas at the same time Monmouth hikes its fees. In accordance, Dysart raised Snowdon's agreement by $1,000 last year, although Glamorgan saw no increase.

"You wonder if we should put a lid on it," said Leadbeater.

"We should at least ask Monmouth to reconsider," said Hodgson. "These things can get out of hand."

Davis suggested any decisions be postponed until the matter with Monmouth is straightened out.

Leadbeater agreed, saying, "It seems to me a small increase is in order, but I have difficulty paying a 20 per cent increase."

He also questioned whether such a steep increase would be justifiable for Snowdon and Glamorgan. "How much is it costing us to cover them?" Leadbeater asked. "We have to have a fire department anyway."

Councillor John Parish said Dysart had to purchase new equipment, and added Snowdon has neither a fire truck nor a firehall. But Leadbeater said he wouldn't like to see Snowdon hit too hard with another increase.

Another reason Dysart's fire protection costs have risen is that last year the local Ministry of Natural Resources experienced personnel cut-backs of 46 per cent and had to lean on volunteer firefighters, said Davis. (See related story elsewhere in The Echo.) "We're fighting more brush fires, now," he said.

Council will hold off any decisions until its February meeting.

In a telephone interview, Monmouth Fire Chief Ralph Watson told The Echo his department is in the process of purchasing a new truck, because one of its two pumps has a hole in the water tank.

The department also has a tanker and an emergency van, and all vehicles are now being set-up with a radio paging system, which was funded through JEPP (Joint Emergency Preparedness Program).

As well, recommendations from the Fire Marshall's office now require volunteer fire departments to purchase flame resistant bunker suits for each of its members. The suits consist of long coat, pants, and short rubber boots, at a cost of about $1,000 per person. The Monmouth department is made up of 21 volunteers.

"There's never been a standard set for turn-out gear for firefighters," says Watson, adding the suits must be phased in over the next three years. "It's not something we have to rush out and buy."

Accident kills three

Halls Lake never freezes over at this spot and in a Toronto Star article, a relative says the three accident victims knew this.

This is the second fatal snowmobile accident this season and Maybee says accidents are to be expected as more people are in the Highlands for recreational snowmobiling.

"You can't have thousands of people driving snowmobiles in the 'vacation mode' without having accidents," he says. "People all too often are on vacation when they're here—winter and summer—and they usually aren't as safety conscious as they should be because they're out to have fun."

Once again, Maybee cautions drivers of all vehicles never to out-distance their lights; that is, never drive faster than your braking distance at night.

Snowmobilers raise funds at Snowarama

The annual Haliburton Rotary Snowarama snowmobile ride for the Easter Seal Society will take place this Saturday at the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve. Riders will cover a route of approximately 100 kilometres on groomed trails, beginning and ending at the cookhouse at the entrance to the reserve. Participants will receive a free tank of fuel, courtesy of Brian and Dorothy Black of Sid Stamp Fuels, as well as a hot meal at the end of their trip.

The local event is organized by Haliburton Rotarians and traditionally raises more than $10,000 to support the work of the Easter Seal Society of Ontario.

all good, old-fashioned private enterprise."

Bishop took the opportunity to express concern about the road leading to the ski hill. "I'm disappointed with the condition of the road. Other than maintenance, nothing has been done for 25 years, but there have been many changes in the area over those years. Something has to be done."

"It's bad, there's no doubt about that," agreed Davis, who became familiar with the road when he was an ambulance driver. "It's probably one of the worst roads in the system, but we've had less road funding. Certainly a lot of construction will have to be done with it."

Roads Superintendent Jim Taylor said a portion of the road leading into the ski lift has been maintained, but added that it's not owned by the municipality.

"In the winter it's plowed, in the summer it's graded occasionally, but it has never been formally assumed," said Bishop.

"I've brought it up to a standard which the municipality agreed to accept on three occasions over the past four or five years, but nothing's ever come of it," he added, calling the situation "ridiculous."

Hodgson said Bishop was told the road would be assumed if it was hard-topped, and Councillor John Parish agreed.

"That road has been a bone of contention for years," said Bishop.

MNR crews coped with fires despite personnel cutbacks

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Despite personnel cut-backs, fire crews with the Ministry of Natural Resources were successful in handling forest fires last year, says Tom Russell, operations manager for the Haliburton office.

Province-wide cuts in 1989 saw the ministry replacing its 171 five-member crews with 207 three-member crews. The number of firefighters was decreased from 850 to 621, an overall reduction of 25 per cent.

However, the manpower in this area was cut 46 per cent, with nine firefighters remaining in the Haliburton area and nine in Algonquin Park. Cost efficiency was the reason for the cuts.

"It worked out okay," says Russell. "We had a busy year last year, but we made it work in the Algonquin Region. There's no doubt about that."

Over the past 10-year period, fires have increased by up to 50 per cent, estimates Russell. "That's because we've been experiencing dry, hot summers," he says. "It's those two or three-week dry periods that are the killers. That's when we're busiest."

Last summer, ministry crews managed 50 fires in the Haliburton area and 72 in Algonquin Park. The total number of fires in the Algonquin Region was 587 last year.

One change over the years is an increase in lightning fires. While the yearly average up until 1987 was 38 in the region, last year there were 99.

"Usually, lightning fires start in areas which are not accessible, so we've needed to use a lot more helicopters," explains Russell.

In order to manage with less people, the ministry has been forced to do much more long-term planning, says Russell. "The big thing is to look at all information, such as weather forecasts and the area's burning industries. We have to watch the weather patterns."

Fires must be anticipated during high-risk times. And the more centralized crews are expected to travel about the regions by helicopter.

Initially, when the cuts were first announced, there was concern expressed by the area's volunteer fire departments which would be required to spend more time fighting forest fires rather than focussing strictly on structural fires. Appropriate equipment would have to be purchased, and members would be required to take additional training, as well as spend extra time away from their regular jobs.

But Russell says both groups managed to handle last year's rash of fires successfully. "The municipal firefighters did a good job. We didn't see that we were using their people as much as we expected. We promised to make sure we wouldn't let them down, and it seems to have worked out."

"They expected us to pick up the slack, and we were prepared to," says Monmouth Fire Chief Ralph Watson, who agrees the nature of fires in the area in 1989 didn't require the fire departments to over-extend themselves.

"Last summer, we controlled a couple of little fires, but they were the kind that we wouldn't have contacted the MNR for, anyway."

What bothers Watson is that local fire departments were provided with a list of suggested equipment purchases suitable to fight forest fires. "We're a small municipality, and a $15,000 purchase of equipment we can only use in the summer for forest

The physiotherapy department at Haliburton Hospital will purchase a new ultrasound machine, thanks to the Rotary Club of Haliburton. Last Thursday, the club approved a donation of $1200 to purchase the machine, which will remain at Haliburton Hospital to benefit the local community.

The donation was made after physiotherapist Bonnie Mowat addressed the club recently and outlined its needs for additional equipment.

Rains cause creeks to run, lakes to open

there's ice there. It would be very easy to lose your bearings."

As well, the heavy rain caused some creeks to run "which means there's open water where there wasn't last week. Inflow and outflow areas are susceptible" to such changes in temperature.

Although the rain melted much of the snow, 13 cm of snow fell between Sunday and Monday night, bring the depth of snow cover—32 centimetres—back up to last week's level.

There is a slight chance of more rain on Friday, but Elstone suspects only snow will fall. Temperatures will continue to be above seasonal norms and "there's a lot of fast moving storm systems which will zip by, with probably more snowfall. But they're moving so fast it's hard to put a time on them."

Sunday will be the coldest day of the week.

Haliburtonians might be glad to know we're not the only ones experiencing odd weather conditions. Finally a little more snow fell in the Alps and on Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, "the southern shore froze solid for the first time in living memory. They say the reason is they had a lot of rain and because of runoff, the salinity of the sea was quite low and hence it was able to freeze."

"And if you like to fly kites, in the Hebrides in Northern Scotland, the wind was 160 m.p.h. or 258 km/h, which is hurricane force (but there was no hurricane.) It's not uncommon to have high winds in the Hebrides but 160 m.p.h. breaks all records."

Weather trivia: Fifty-two years ago this Saturday, the Honey-moon Bridge in Niagara Falls collapsed because of ice jams pushing the footings out.

Haliburton to replace old traffic lights

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

The main intersection of Haliburton Village should have new lights by the May long weekend, Dysart et al council was told last Monday.

Presently, the municipality is in the process of ordering a new set of lights for the intersection of Highland Street and Maple Avenue.

A traffic count study was conducted by consultants Totten Sims Hubicki during the busy weekends last summer to prove to the Ministry of Transportation that funding to replace the lights is justified.

Funding was approved for the recommended set of lights, which will feature left turn and pedestrian signals.

Previously, council had considered moving the existing lights down the road, to the intersection of Highland Street and York Street/Cedar Avenue. But it has since been determined the old lights cannot be salvaged.

COMING SOON: The ball is really rolling now on the project of establishing the Lutterworth Township Industrial Park. Councillor Maurice Boyd is in charge of the project, and says lots may be ready for sale by next spring.

Industrial park progressing

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

The sale of lots in Lutterworth Township's industrial park may begin this spring.

Lutterworth has owned the Highway 121 property for several years, and Councillor Maurice Boyd was assigned to the job of following up on proposals last March. At last Thursday's meeting, Boyd gave council an encouraging report on recent progress.

A Ministry of Transportation representative has visited the site, and given approval for the proposed entrance. "So we know exactly where we're going now," said Boyd.

Approval from the Ministries of Environment and Natural Resources was also just received by Boyd.

The centre line has been surveyed for the road leading into the park, and elevations have been mapped out. This work was done by Haliburton's Murray Kuno, who was hired by the township to assist Boyd in planning the endeavour.

"I'm just waiting for Murray to work out the material costs for constructing the road," said Boyd. "We will see if our own crew can do the brushing of the road, but we won't have them do the actual construction."

"Everything else is pretty well under control," he said, adding that, until road construction costs are determined, the township won't be able to decide upon costs for the lots.

Boyd would like to see a new sign on the property to promote the park, and said it's getting close to the time council must work on agreements for the lots.

Council members will discuss site agreements at the next meeting, and forward their ideas to the township's solicitor for his input.

Only 30 acres of the 100-acre property are zoned for industrial uses, and the rest is zoned for extraction purposes. Boyd says he doesn't foresee the township having to rezone any more, however.

"Everything seems to be moving along fairly well," added Boyd, who plans to contribute an optimistic message in the township's next newsletter which goes out with its tax bills. "There's an excellent possibility the industrial park will become a reality next spring."

Building fees will increase

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

In changing its fee structure, Lutterworth Township will increase building permit fees for permanent main dwellings.

Lutterworth's fee structure has been under review by township building inspector and bylaw enforcement officer Ernie Roylance.

Previously, a flat rate of $50 had been charged for each building permit issued. But at last Thursday's meeting, council agreed with Roylance to base permit fees on the size of the building.

Roylance said he contacted other municipalities, and came up with a suggestion of charging 12 cents for each square foot.

Councillor Lisa Mercer said that increase is too steep, and suggested that Lutterworth follow Stanhope Township's fee of 10 cents per square foot. Council agreed to Mercer's recommendation.

Roylance also requested that a $100 construction deposit be required for each building permit issued. The money would be held until a final inspection.

"The township is liable if a building has no smoke alarm or if someone falls down faulty stairs," said Roylance. "This way we could ensure there's a final inspection."

Mercer said there could be problems with the deposit. "You can't just take that money," she said. "What about the interest?"

Roylance said the townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford request a $50 deposit for its building permits, but no other municipalities have similar bylaws as far as he knows.

Decision on this matter was deferred for further discussion.

Councillors question plan's jurisdiction

for that time demand."

Implementation of official plan policies will be difficult at first, "but there will be improved communication within the county, and a greater understanding between the communities," said Maladey.

Since the county acts as a liaison in dealing with other areas such as Muskoka, a plan will make it "easier for Haliburton to negotiate with the county next door."

Also, an official plan can provide the county with a strong voice when dealing with provincial and federal agencies. "And it will enhance policies dealt with now, such as economic development and tourism."

The input of local councils, local residents, and each township will be sought, and all will be given the opportunity to share their ideas with the committee through public meetings, assured Bradley.

Also, the official plan will be designed to give each municipality assurance "that development in neighbouring areas won't be detrimental to them," said Maladey.

During the meetings it was noted that Haliburton is still dealing with the province's proposed restructuring of the county government system. One of the recommendations in the proposal calls for municipalities to have minimum populations of 4,000 people—this would force some townships to amalgamate, so an official plan completed before this time would be affected.

"If restructuring takes place after the official plan, there will be more costs," said Bradley. "If restructuring comes along at the same time, it will be more cost-efficient, especially if there are boundary-line changes, and such. Otherwise, we'd have to change the official plan."

Maladey said the official plan only recognizes boundaries, "it doesn't draw them in." She said restructuring will come years down the road, so the county shouldn't be afraid to draw up its official plan first, keeping in mind what changes there may be.

Another problem arises for municipalities that already have official plans. AHM drafted its plan in October 1985, "at a considerable cost to the municipality, and it was a forward move," said Minden Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry. "What incentive is the provincial government offering us? Are Dysart, Cardiff and Anson, Hindon and Minden getting a credit rating for being forward thinkers?"

"There is money there," said Terry Turner, who said current programs are offering as much as 50 per cent funding. "But whatever initiatives there are now may not be there in the future. But official plans should be high priority. We can't say for sure there will be funding, but I would say it would look pretty good."

Turner added it's not necessarily true that existing official plans "would evaporate," so it wouldn't be fair for those municipalities to expect a full refund. Local plans don't take precedence over the county's, but the county official plan may be more generic, he said.

"There's a decision that must be made to determine how the county official plan will be designed," added Maladey. The county has the choice to develop either a one-tier or two-tier official plan.

A two-tier plan would involve one generic plan for the county, and more specific plans for each of the municipalities. "Cardiff, Dysart, and Anson, Hindon and Minden already have very detailed planning, and you must see whether it's appropriate to use those existing policies and develop plans for the other areas," Maladey said.

If a one-tier official plan is decided upon, those existing plans would become obsolete as only one plan would cover the entire county.

While local plans would be more detailed, Maladey said a county plan should delineate urban and rural areas. "That way, for a municipality to expand its urban area, it would

"Counties have a definite lead role and people's expectations have increased therefore service demands have increased."

require county approval."

Minden Reeve Ray Moore said the official plan will have to identify and map out possible growth areas such as Carnarvon, Ingoldsby, and West Guilford.

Minden Chief Building Official Tom Hubercheck suggested the process of going through a two-tier plan, as well as a municipality's zoning bylaw, would be very costly for developers. "If you have to go through two tiers on everything, it's really going to jam things up."

But Maladey explained the plan system needn't be cumbersome if developed properly. "You're trying to determine what areas are appropriate for development, especially tourism-related development which is very important for the area," she said. "It really depends on what level of detail you want in your official plan. It's up to the county and local municipalities to negotiate."

A system could be devised where the county is the only planning body, and municipalities would prepare reports to the county for development proposals, said Maladey.

Although there had been discussion of hiring a county planner, like in Victoria and Huron Counties, Maladey said this idea may not be feasible. "Because you have a very low permanent resident base, it would be very costly to have a permanent planner on staff. Again, it's up to you."

Minden Clerk-Treasurer Mary Mysyk pointed out that AHM must review its official plan this year (an official plan must be reviewed every five years). Revisions are needed, but Mysyk isn't sure whether it's worthwhile to spend the money. "We'll be paying two-fold, for the review and for the county official plan."

Bradley said the county committee will meet with each individual municipality, "and by that time you may know what to do. Wait until those meetings. I realize that it's hard to budget for, but we're already into this—let's keep going."

Moore told Mysyk he wants to proceed with updating Minden's official plan, "to get in the amendments we're looking at, such as enlarging the Minden urban core. I think we should address that in Anson, Hindon and Minden, not the county."

"Each municipality that doesn't have an official plan will need one of sorts," agreed Bradley. "Otherwise you would risk going to OMB (Ontario Municipal Board) hearings without sufficient back-up."

Mysyk then noted that an increasing number of municipal responsibilities, such as waste management, are being taken over by the county. "It seems like the province is trying to make the county more important. All of a sudden, you're not going to have a local government."

Turner said the County Government in Ontario report by his ministry determined that these governments should take more of a leading role. "I don't think it means everything has to go to the county. It's just a catch-up now."

"Every county is different, that is recognized," he said. "Counties have a definite lead role and people's expectations have increased, therefore service demands have increased."

"The county isn't out to take things from you, but to make things easier," added Bradley.

Bradley said municipalities have been "shoving off" responsibilities to the county. "The county is finding itself suddenly with a lot of things to deal with. An official plan could address a lot of problems which have been thrust upon the county because municipalities don't know how to deal with them. I don't think any of you want social services problems again."

Moore noted that a restructuring may help Anson, Hindon and Minden deal with its responsibilities more efficiently. He'd like to see a ward system with eight councillors, like in Dysart. "We at Minden have a five-man council just as they do in Lutterworth, but we have to deal with sidewalks, the arena, water, sewers, hydro, and so much more."

AHM council members are overworked, said Moore. "We're so strung-out we sometimes wonder if we can get through the job."

The county has also seen tremendous growth, said Bradley in his opening. "However, we must be careful and not confuse growth with development," he said, adding that growth will have an impact on the environment. "Here again an official plan can and should address this in the best possible way..."

"We must set aside our sacred cows and work together for the betterment of the county," said Bradley. "We can no longer content ourselves with phrases like, 'It was good enough for my father, it is good enough for me, or, we have never done it that way before'."

"In order for an official plan at county level to work, each township and their elected representatives must set aside personal preferences and look ahead with a commitment to co-operation for the betterment of all within the county. This will require, on all our behalf, the willingness to give and take."

"We must also be aware, even though some like things the way they are, that county government, namely restructuring, presents us with an opportunity to do things more economically. This definitely will take some time to put in place, and certainly will have its growing pains, but in the long run should bring about the kind of efficiency that the people of this county deserve."

AHM gets review funding

Provincial funding for a study of planning administration has been approved for Anson, Hindon and Minden.

Municipal planner Bob Lehman is already in the process of starting the study of the townships' office. Employees, and the steps they take to handle planning matters using the zoning bylaw and official plan, will be under review to ensure things are running as efficiently as possible. Funding from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs has been approved in the amount of $5,000 or 50 per cent of the cost of the project.

The ministry has asked Lehman to do a prototype of the project to be used to measure efficiency in future studies of other municipalities.

An initial payment of $4,250 has been sent, with the balance available upon satisfactory completion of the study. Deadline for the work is November 30, 1990.

AWARD-WINNING STUDENTS: These J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School students did very well in the the Royal Canadian Legion's writing and poster contests. Seated in front are the first-place winners in each category, with second-place winners in the respective category standing behind them. Vice-principal David McKinley was the staff/legion liaison. The winners are, in category pairs (seated then standing), from left:

Legion awards students prizes

STUDENTS OF J. DOUGLAS HODGSON Elementary School put their minds and creative talents to work just before Remembrance Day last year and now some of them are beginning to reap the benefits.

Every year, the Royal Canadian Legion sponsors a poster, writing and public speaking contest. The speakers are still polishing up their prose, but winners of the poster and writing contest have recently been chosen.

Local Branch 129 received 11 posters, 54 poems and 42 essays, making the judging difficult for Nancy Robichaud, Bob Penfold, Holly Hutchinson, Mark Flatman and Nona-Lyn Philips. The staff liaison was Vice-Principal David McKinley.

One of the winners is Jeremy Roberts, whose essay went on to win first in the zone's junior category. His work is now competing in the Ontario Command competition, and if it wins at this level, it will go on to the nationals. Other zone results give Drew Robertson and third place finish for his poem, and Theresa Pollard, whose essay also placed third.

In the local contest, first second and third place winners receive a cash award, framed certificate and an evening at the Legion auditorium. Parents, teachers and friends are invited to the celebration.

Winners in each of the categories are as follows, with first place winner followed by the second:

POEMS: Intermediate: Chris Dobbins, Jessie Longworth; Junior: Drew Robertson, Jenny Phillips.

ESSAYS: Intermediate: Theresa Pollard, Lindsay Francis; Junior: Jeremy Roberts, Greg Lewis.

The Cost of Our Freedom

by JEREMY ROBERTS, 4A

NOVEMBER THE 11th is a very special day that we must remember because that was the day one of the greatest wars ended. This was World War I. Did you know that more than 60,000 Canadians died fighting for our country? That was quite a lot. Would you like to pay that price?

When World War I was over, one soldier said "It sure felt good to stand up and watch a sunset without getting shot at." When the war ended there was a lot of celebrating. It was a time to be glad and a time to be sad. At the hearing of the end of the war it was in the headlines all over the country.

World War I's nickname was 'the war to end all wars'. The reason we have to remember is because of the soldiers who died so that we could enjoy our freedom.

One of the most popular symbols for Remembrance Day is the blood-red poppy. There are others too, such as the white crosses above the soldier's graves in Flanders Fields in France.

My grandfather fought in World War II. He used to take food and supplies to the front lines on mules. He had to lead mules through mine trails and drive supply trucks. My grandfather doesn't like to talk about the war because it brings back sad memories. If it wasn't for those brave men and women like my grandfather, we wouldn't have many of the freedoms we have now.

World War II (which began 21 years after World War I) happened because Hitler and his German army, along with the Italian and Japanese armies, gradually started to take over Europe. What was to be the war to end wars didn't turn out to be that way at all because again the whole world was fighting. At first, Hitler was looking pretty good. Finally his luck ran out. He was defeated. After Germany was defeated the Americans dropped an A-Bomb on Japan, and that ended World War II.

I wear a poppy on Remembrance Day to help me to remember the soldiers who died in both wars. Do you wear a poppy on Remembrance Day?

Stanhope debates committee's role after an airport manager was hired

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

As Stanhope becomes accustomed to year-round and increased use of its airport, everyone must work together to make it operate as efficiently as possible, says a Ministry of Transportation senior report planner.

"What they have right now is simply growing pains," says Jim Scott in a telephone interview with the Echo. "Things have been operated in a volunteer fashion for years and years and to make a change will cause some problems."

That change has been the hiring of the municipality's first airport manager, Mike Carey. At the January 10 meeting of Stanhope council, this led to a discussion—occasionally a heated one—about the airport committee's role now that some of its responsibilities have been taken over by Carey.

"Everyone has to pull together," says Scott, who adds "every municipal airport should have an airport committee. The people who are appointed should represent a broad cross section of the local area—users, the Chamber of Commerce—to ensure there's a wide range of input in support. Councils can't do public relations or arrange promotion."

However, it should be clear that the manager has only one boss—council, Scott says. "Normally a manager does not report to the committee because council is ultimately responsible for the costs."

Part of the debate at the last council meeting centred on whether Carey should be on the airport committee and if so, whether he should be a voting member. Council already has a representative on the committee, Councillor Murray Daniels.

Scott sees nothing wrong with Carey being on the committee to keep everyone informed about what's going on or enlist help for special projects. But he agrees with council that Carey should not have voting rights.

"It would be an impossible situation to wear two hats" as manager and voting committee member, Scott says. "You need someone to take forward to council the advice, comments and concerns of the committee" and that person can either be the political representative, committee chairperson or secretary. "As to which is the best, I don't think I could say."

Carey can make separate manager's reports to council.

Commenting on the committee, Scott says "if we go back in time, the committee was the backbone of the airport and that was a clear demonstration there was locally a commitment to that facility. That goes a long way to influence us."

"I think we know how to conduct ourselves," said committee chairman Derek Rolfe at the council meeting. "As chairman, I would respect the manager as to his position. He would be an advisor."

"The manager is there to manage and should have the discretion to say I agree or don't agree," said Deputy-revee Ann Barker.

"The airport manager is strictly governed by contract and can't so much as buy a box of Kleenex without council approval," said Councillor Eleanor Harrison.

MNR reviews crews

Fires is just too much."

A provincial review found last year's three-member crew system to be effective, but there may be a need for four-member crews in some areas, states a recent press release from the ministry.

The fire crew system review makes seven other recommendations: examining the optimum mix of fire resources for the province, looking into the feasibility of restoring funds removed in 1989, providing native awareness training in regular fire training programs, strengthening the role of the auxiliary firefighter, enhancing the basic training system, developing a better definition of the role of the fire crew leader, and strengthening internal and external communications on changes to the fire system.

"The review has presented me with a range of recommendations for our forest firefighting efforts for the coming season," states Natural Resources Minister Lyn McLeod in the release. "I have received the report and will be studying its findings and recommendations before making any decisions."

Several new options on crew size have been outlined in the review. The "flexible crew system," with three-member crews as a core unit, was originally chosen to increase efficiency and to improve the ministry's ability to react to fires quickly, states the release.

"The change in the fire crew system was one step toward a more balanced fire suppression strategy," says McLeod. "It reflected advancements in other areas such as waterbombing, decision support and fire intelligence."

Although there were some implementation problems, the review indicates the change to smaller crews was effective in preventing a project fire (one that requires a substantial commitment of crews and equipment). The unforeseen problems were related to fatigue, training, equipment and adaptation to the increased use of auxiliary firefighters in support of the regular crews, reads the release.

A related review of health and safety aspects of firefighting is currently underway. A task force of representatives from the ministry and the Ontario Public Service Employees Union is expected to report to the director of Aviation and Fire Management by the end of the month.

Time for a plan

Twelve years ago, members of Haliburton County council agreed there was a need for consistency in planning and managing development. Working with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, they hired a consulting firm to produce a Development Strategy which was intended to establish guidelines for the orderly growth of the area. The study, which ran to several hundred pages, was formally presented to council in 1978. It contained useful information, but its major shortcoming was that there was no formal means to ensure that the policies it established were followed. It was not an official plan, backed up by zoning by-laws, but a statement of concepts and philosophy. It might have been an important document if local councils had agreed to entrench its recommendations, but they were content, instead, to put it on the shelf and go on doing things the way they had always done them.

Today, despite the substantial growth that has occurred in Haliburton County in the past 10 years, only three municipalities — Dysart, Anson Hindon and Minden, and Cardiff — have official plans. The rest make do with zoning by-laws and policies that may be significantly different from those of the townships they adjoin. The result isn't exactly chaos, but neither is it consistency. The shortcomings of this haphazard approach are many. Local municipalities have yet to adopt formal policies on the development of residential condominiums on lakefront properties. Are lakeshore condominiums appropriate in Haliburton County, and if so, under what conditions? Is there a consensus that backlot development behind lakeshore properties is not desirable? And what about lot sizes? If 150 feet is the minimum in one municipality, is it in the best interests of the public that another municipality allows 100 foot lots? Indeed, should new lakefront lots be significantly larger, in order to minimize the impact of new development on water bodies. Does it make sense that some municipalities do not permit boat houses — a good policy — while others have no restrictions on such structures? Some municipalities also are more flexible than others in allowing structures to be erected closer than the minimum 66 foot setback from lakeshores. Some allow any number of lots to be created by severance, while others have strict rules intended to limit the use of severances and encourage development by plan of subdivision, with tighter controls and better protection of the public interest. In short, Haliburton County has much to gain from pursuing an official plan, and it is encouraging that it has begun to talk about doing so.

Last November, county councillors voted unanimously to move toward a county-wide official plan. They have stated they agree with the concept in principle. What remains is for them to see the initiative through to completion. Creating an official plan to reflect development priorities in a county that encompasses 1600 square miles will not be easy or inexpensive, but the benefits should far outweigh the costs and inconveniences of the process.

In the past, Haliburton County could have been described as an arbitrary political union of municipalities with widely different population bases, priorities, economic influences and even topography. Inevitably, the sheer size of the county has led to differences in the perspectives of municipal leaders. The north western portion of the county has felt more allied with Muskoka than with Minden or Haliburton. The eastern townships, too, have sometimes manifested their uneasiness with the county structure and institutions. An official plan represents an opportunity to set aside those historic differences and to view the county as an entity, as a place worth protecting. Cardiff reeve Maurice Bradley put it succinctly: "Each township and their elected representatives must set aside personal preferences and look ahead with a commitment to co-operation for the betterment of all within the county. This will require, on all our behalf, a willingness to give and take."

The old ways are no longer appropriate. Haliburton County needs an official plan, and every local politician must remain committed to that goal, no matter how difficult the process may prove to be.

Co-operation on road appreciated

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OUR READERS WRITE...

To the Editor:

I would like to acknowledge the cooperation and generosity of some of the people of our community in helping the municipality.

Dysart et al employs six plow routes to cover all its roads for winter. The second week in January, one of our tandem plows broke down and is in for repairs at Peterborough. This means extending routes for two other plows and allocating a grader to the Kennis plow route.

On January 10, the grader went out of control, due to icy conditions on North Kennis Road and slipped into a deep ditch. Repeated efforts to bring the grader out of the ditch were unsuccessful. Percy Lymburner, working in the area suggested using a log skidder that was due to be in the area the following morning. Pat Morrison of West Guilford was contacted that night and it was agreed he and his staff would help. Also that same night Mr. Lymburner called suggesting building a platform and using the grader's own power in raising the grader in a horizontal position, making the exit out of the ditch easier.

On the morning of the 11th, road crews armed with numerous railroad ties, chainsaws and extra heavy duty chains met Mr. Lymburner at the site as he was digging out the snow around the grader in preparation to build a platform. Mr. Morrison arrived at 10:30 am and all was ready for the lift out of the ditch.

Mr. Morrison's large skidder walked up the side of the road bank and was anchored to the base of a large tree. A cable from its winch was released and hooked onto the midpoint of grader. It took less than half an hour to remove the grader to the road with no damage to any equipment.

When I approached Pat and Percy for payment of their services, I received a handshake and the comment "Just keep the roads open". That was all they wanted.

My appreciation and thanks to all involved in this incident, especially Percy, Pat & Crew.

Developer feels stymied by PAC

To the Editor:

It has come time to explain to the General Public what is really happening in their community.

I have explained to Anson, Hindon and Minden's Planning Advisory Committee that I don't believe they are for development because the agenda speaks for itself. It said, "We went from a two-page agenda, twice a month while I was by-law enforcement officer, to a one-page agenda once a month". The argument was it is the time of year. This is hogwash; people apply to do things in the winter so they can start them in the spring or summer.

One comment made is we are going so fast. My response is we are going too slow. If obstacles beyond belief are put in developers' paths they just go to another town or municipality that is more cooperative. There are more people willing to invest in Anson, Hindon and Minden. However, if their plans are stalled and delayed for nit-picking reasons you will have a lot of potential investors reluctant to invest a few million dollars in this community and the end result is loss of jobs and conveniences that people want when they come up to our beautiful community. If we don't provide the services to the General Public that they want, then they go to the communities that do provide them and welcome expansion.

I have been trying since last July to get some severances off the front of my property so we can build a new bank with an instant teller that Haliburton has and we don't, and a new bake shop with coffee and doughnut shop. However, the PAC does not

FEIR PLAY

CREIGHTON FEIR

WELL, THE BIG NEWS in local hockey circles around the county this week is the National Hockey League trade that sent our own Bernie Nicholls of the Los Angeles Kings to the New York Rangers in exchange for forwards Tomas Sandstrom and Tony Granato. For weeks now we have been hearing rumours that the Kings were considering trading Bernie Nicholls, but like everyone else we thought it was just a lot of talk. Rumoured for the last few days to be headed for Manhattan, Bernie's worst fears were realized last Saturday night. "I just bought a house in L.A. and I thought I was going to live in it for a long time," Nicholls told a Toronto Star reporter. "But this is the nature of the business and it's not always good." It's my opinion that if Bernie can keep putting the puck in the net like we know he can, he should become the toast of Broadway in the not too distant future. The deal was made official at the arena in Haliburton on Saturday night when a New York Rangers sweater was put up in place of the Los Angeles Kings emblem which had been in position under Bernie's name for the past several years. Now the time has come for change. For most of us who had changed our allegiance to the L.A. Kings, we must now leave Gretzky and the gang and start to cheer for the Broadway Blueshirts. Best of luck Bernie with the New York Rangers.

The arena in Haliburton was packed with hockey fans on Saturday night when the Wexford Raiders took on the Barrie Colts in an exhibition Junior "B" game.

The two teams, who are in first place in their divisions, put on a good classy show with Barrie winning on a close 4-3 decision. One of the main attractions and a good drawing card for the Saturday night game was the return home of Erin Nicholls who is playing the season with the Wexford Raiders. The Haliburton Minor Hockey Association is to be congratulated on bringing this high calibre of hockey to Haliburton.

While still on the subject of hockey I might as well keep right on going and tell you how surprised I was when I started to look through The Toronto Star sports pages on Sunday to find so many sports items that would be of interest to the people of Haliburton County. The headline on the lead story was "You can call him Broadway Bernie".

Next to this sports story was a photo of Bryan (Bugsy) Watson playing in the oldtimers' game Saturday in Pittsburgh in connection with the NHL All Star weekend. Bryan is from Bancroft but is well known in the Haliburton area, because he has a cottage near Sir Sam's Inn. On Page 3 in the sports section we noticed another item on Steve Larmer, who has family connections in Haliburton County. Steve who plays with the Chicago Blackhawks has nine goals and 23 assists in his last 20 games. He has also played in 607 straight games, the longest of any NHL player.

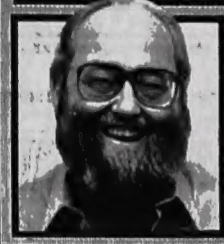

Now is the time to get ready and to get set for the 1990 edition of the annual Minden Kinsmen Winter Carnival which is scheduled for this Friday, Saturday & Sunday—January 26, 27 and 28. As usual the big weekend will include a number of winter attractions. Special events are on the menu both indoors and out. There will be sport car races on the ice, curling bonspiel, novice-tyke hockey tournament, fish derby, wrist wrestling, roast beef dinner at Zion United Church at Carnarvon, toque auction, and St. Paul's Anglican Church Pancake Breakfast in the arena auditorium. Something new this year will be Coors Light Snofest Tournament with 16 teams and the First Annual HCSA Poker Run. So this weekend plan to be in Minden for some good old fashioned winter fun.

Here, there and everywhere... The First Annual Poker Run sponsored by the H.C.S.A. will be held at Minden on Saturday, January 27 in conjunction with the Ski-Doo Formula Club Radar Ride... We are sorry to report the death of Mrs. Harry Bagshaw which occurred last week... Bruce McNall, owner of the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, said recently that between them, Gretzky, Nicholls and Robitaille, gave the Kings three of the top six scorers in hockey, with a whopping 215 points, and the security of never being out of a game... Hats off to all those responsible for making the Minden Sled Dog Derby a great success. It was a smooth operation from start to finish... It was very discouraging last Tuesday evening and all day Wednesday to see the rain come down for hours, taking away the snow and making walking and driving treacherous... The Haliburton high school's Redmen hockey team, who defeated the Thomas Stewart secondary school from Peterborough recently by the score of 8-6, will not be back at the Dysart arena until January 31 when they'll play Port Hope in the final home game before the play-off round begins in mid-February... Most schools in Haliburton County were closed last Wednesday due to icy road conditions.

POINTS OF VIEW

Putting history on the tracks

IT WAS NICE to see snowmobilers getting some pleasure out of the abandoned CNR line that runs through Donald, but every time I pass our crossing, I still think how great it would be if we still had the tracks...and a train.

In an era when it costs $80. to subsidize every single rider, it is understandable that the days of mass passenger transportation by rail are numbered. When this line was being cancelled, we both felt it would be fun to take a trip up before it died, but we never did get around to it.

But, now that passenger trains are getting fewer and fewer, and towed by big, smelly diesels, how nice it would be if we were able to give people a sample of what it used to be like.

I don't know how many years ago it must of been, but we did have a sort of hearing in Haliburton before most of the rails came up, and the stretch in Dysart from town to the Pringle Road were left in place until this past summer.

I sent a presentation to that hearing, pitching for the line to be saved for a future rail line as a tourist attraction. It could either have been a full-size train with old cars, I suggested, or a lightweight, smaller version with open cars, pulled by an engine that actually concealed the workings of a modern diesel truck.

I included stories of examples of lines running in Michigan and other places, where short stretches had been salvaged, and local volunteers would run the railway on weekends for tourists to take a trip back to the past.

The idea for the smaller, lightweight trains with modern motors disguised as locomotives came from a trip to Key West, where trains like these tow loads of tourists around in rubber-tired open coaches for a guided tour on the history of the ancient town.

I had envisioned living dioramas along the stretch, proposing that we could apply for grants for local students to work their summers in costume — either as guides on the trains, or as 'actors' in the dioramas.

I figured we could have one showing old-fashioned log-cabin building, one on the old farms, another on a logging mill, and so on, with the costumed student/actors springing into action to entertain the passengers as the train chugged by, and the guides giving the narrative to go with it.

I don't know that my little presentation had anything to do with the decision to hold onto the tracks, and I do know that some people thought that the five miles of line were too short to develop as a railway attraction — but I do know that about that time public liability insurance rates took a giant leap. I believe that's what really killed the concept.

I have always wanted to ride one of the real old time trains, and this fall, on a vacation trip to Pennsylvania, we got our chance. We got to ride 'the road to Paradise,' which just happens to be the town at the other end of the line from the East Straburg station, about four-and-a-half miles away.

The cars were very much like those I used to ride on between Toronto and Kitchener in the late 40s, going home for the weekend from my job in the Big Smoke, and they were quite old then. These were all spruced up, of course, with windows that would open and close, and the only soot was fresh from the locomotive.

They have a good commentary, and pass through Amish country that adds some atmosphere, but they really don't give you much more than a nice taste of what steam railroading was — and is — all about.

The operation does have the advantage of being a feeder line to the main AMTRAK line, and by lining up some guaranteed freight runs, are able to subsidize some of their costs. It was rescued by 50 stockholders who bought all the shares for $450. each, and were automatically made vice-presidents of the line.

Even with 50 vice-presidents the concept has worked, and they have added to their passenger rolling stock, put restaurants and gift areas in the old station, and the local model railroaders have a building with a big layout just down the road. They've added some locomotives, too, and we took our trip behind one that looked a lot like the one by Head Lake, that the group bought from the CNR 'for a song.'

I guess one of the ironies of it all is that a reason the idea of having such a line in Haliburton never got off the ground was the problem with liability insurance, triggered that year by a teenager injured on an ATV who started a colossal lawsuit against the town of Brampton.

Now ATVs are using our railway line to travel around and annoy neighborhoods, and may even cause trouble enough to get the right-of-way closed off for all motorized vehicles.

A strange twist to a sad story.

Snowmobiles and those riding them

DOWN OUR ROAD

SHARON LYNCH

"THERE THEY GO AGAIN!" she said, disbelief mixed with disgust, as she turned from the window to resume her typing. Once of the advantages of working in an office overlooking a lake is that you are treated to Canada Geese, beautiful sunsets and the myriad of blues our lakes produce. Unfortunately, like it or not, you also see how stupid some people are around water. In this instance, the office secretary was referring to snowmobilers who risked life and machine to jump a stretch of open water where the river ran down into the lake.

It takes all kinds to make up this world and snowmobilers cannot be lumped together into 'one kind'. With these thoughts he rose from his desk, watching the fools as they sped on down the lake. He packed up his papers and grabbed his briefcase. The rest of the afternoon was free of appointments and so he thought he'd take advantage of the weather and go for a ride himself. Not that he'd be jumping any water. But a nice run over one of the trails up by his place would be a good way to work out the tension of a trying week.

Driving home, he couldn't get the reckless riders out of his mind. No matter how many news reports of people drowning in the frigid water every winter, some continued to tempt fate and test their nerve in this frightening way.

What a contrast to old Mike, he thought. Mike was a perfect example of one of the sub groups of the snowmobiler breed. A local fellow, born and raised in the Highlands, he had had the same machine for close to fifteen years, though it would be safe to say that little of the original machine remained. Mike had managed to keep it going by replacing parts as they wore out. He'd scrounge some from the dump, others from ads in the newspaper and the rest he made with bits of this and that. Mike was good at making something out of various pieces of nothing, using wire and a lot of ingenuity. His snowmobile wasn't much to look at, the seat torn and mended with electrical tape, the style grossly outdated compared to the sleek machines seen on the trails these days. Speed was not a concern to him; transportation was. Clothed in his old ripped snowmobile suit, loose patches flopping in the breeze, Mike and his football helmet could be seen barreling along the side of the road, on his way to his cousin's to bum coffee and a cigarette. He had a lot of breakdowns but a day with his tool box and infinite patience would be enough to get the machine back in form.

Almost home now, he turned his thoughts from Mike and slowed as he drove by the marina, waving at some of the neighbours milling around the gas pump. Half a dozen or more snowmobiles were parked by the store, their sleek aerodynamic bodies glinting black and silver in the late afternoon sun. Not a scar marred their smooth surfaces and with a flick of the key their mighty engines would roar into a state of readiness, like wild horses waiting for the fence gate to drop. Their owners strolled among them, equally sleek in tight leather suits and space ship helmets. This was an expensive sport, where speed and style was as important as the ride itself.

Thirty minutes later he was suited up and heading for the trail that ran off the road just up from his house. Clouds had moved in and the temperature was rising. Looked like snow was on the way. Snowmobiles worked best in really cold weather and this mild spell was unwanted. But it still felt good to be out in the bush, away from work and other people, winding around trees, twisting over hills, valleys and marshes. Barbed blackberry bushes had to be avoided as they leaned over sections of the trail, eager to rip anything coming in contact with them.

Because there hadn't been much snow so far this winter, the trail was a lumpy as cold porridge. It was like riding a mini roller coaster and he had to half stand as he steered his machine over some of the worst 'moguls'. There was a clearing up ahead and as he approached it, he slowed down, looking for a truck. The truck was there and in front of it, a sturdy little cabin perched on a knoll that overlooked an open valley, cleared for the hydro line.

He stopped, turned off the ignition and started walking toward the cabin door. A huge golden retriever came lumbering out to greet him. "Hi Sam, how're you doing, old fella?" he asked, rubbing the dog's head. Its tail wagged back and forth happily. His knock on the door was met with 'Come on', so he pushed it open and walked inside. The door opened into the kitchen, where a large wood stove cranked out an enormous heat. Most of the cabin could be seen from the door.

Behind the kitchen lay the living room, the walls lined with a sofa and several chairs. The place was as neat as a pin and larger than it appeared from the outside. He knew that two bedrooms ran off the back of the living room, and in a corner sat the cabin's owner. He and his dog Sam were always happy to see visitors so a hot chocolate was immediately offered in hospitality. The two men sat and talked for a while, discussing fishing and the queer changeable weather of winter to date.

The dog Sam practically lay on top of the visitor, begging for attention, despite orders from its owner to get down. The place was warm and cozy and looking out one of the windows, he could see that the threatened snow had now started, thin wet pellets hitting the glass. It was so comfortable inside he hated to leave but knew it would be dark soon.

Coboconk, Ont., from the Hill

Pic of the Past

There have been a great many changes since this photo was taken in 1907 showing the village of Coboconk from the hill. Today, Coboconk is a tourist town and during the summer months it's jam-ping with activity. One of the historic buildings is the Pattie House Hotel, which has been in operation since the early 1900s. The Coboconk Lions' Club is very active in the community and each summer they sponsor a carnival along with a midway near the lake which runs through the village. In years gone by, Coboconk ices some really good hockey teams.

What's in a name? Poison arrows

THROUGH THE PERISCOPE

MARTHA PERKINS

STICKS AND STONES do break our bones, and however much we like to pretend to the contrary, names do often hurt us. Oh, not the names we're given at birth, but the names which come as the barb of a verbal arrow, chosen to inflict the most pain.

The names people choose to call each other are rooted in our culture, just like our cuss words. To swear in English is to name a bodily function or part, because that's where our hang-ups lie; to swear in French Canadian, all you have to do is put an exclamation mark after something pertaining to the church. Tabernac! (Ornamental box on the altar containing the sacred host!)

Yet again, there are names we choose because they suggest a trait which is not considered normal. "You spazz (as in spastic.) You're nothing but a retard (as in mentally retarded.) What a nut (as in mentally ill.)"

It is because of the way names in this latter category have been twisted into negative images that the Echo recently received Word Choices: A lexicon of preferred terms for disability issues.

"As media professionals," the brochure reads, "you influence and reinforce the public's perception of people with disabilities. The words you use and images you present can create either a positive view of people with disabilities or an indifferent, negative depiction."

Instead of saying "the disabled", which defines people with one characteristic, the brochure asks you to say "persons with disabilities." And if those are physical disabilities require the use of a wheelchair, you don't say "confined to a wheelchair." As Phyllis Sisson of Horseshoe Lake taught me, her wheelchair gives her the freedom of mobility. She lives in it.

Some of the Lexicon words really make sense. The people of Mongolia certainly will be glad that people with Down's Syndrome no longer have Mongolism. (Note again you do not say a person afflicted with Down's Syndrome, nor a sufferer of it.)

But I have problems with changing some words which are logical and precise, such as mentally retarded. We are now to say persons (what's the matter with 'people'?) with developmental disabilities, or the developmentally disabled.

Shortly after receiving the pamphlet, I brought the subject up with the people who stuff the flyers into the Echo every Wednesday. You see, some provincial chapters of the Association for the Mentally Retarded have changed their name to Community Living. To me, Community Living doesn't mean anything—we all live in the community. What's the matter with calling a spade a spade? Can you deny that these people's mental development is slowed, or retarded?

However, even I edited my words when I broached the subject. "If you could change the name of the Association—I didn't want to say 'for the Mentally Retarded'—what would you change it to?" They replied "Community Living." If it's their association, shouldn't they be able to call it what they like?

Yet sometimes this de-sensitization of names can be taken too far. In a recent issue of Newsweek magazine, there's a story called "When ads don't fit the 'image'".

One ad features June Allyson. The sunset has created an orange backdrop and she is barefoot on the beach, her arms joyously uplifted and her left leg youthfully extended. Then, in the bottom corner, is a box of the product she is helping to sell. It looks like a box of aspirin, but really it is a box of incontinent pads—or adult diapers.

The article says that Modern Maturity, the magazine of Retired Persons (there's that word persons again) in which this ad appeared, has a policy which "bans ads for products such as wheelchairs, hearing aids and hemorrhoid remedies—as well as anything with the words 'pain, inflammation, suffer, hurt, ache and flare up.'"

Such tinkering with words and images goes too far. It's fine and good if in your "golden years" you can find an idyllic beach to kick up your heels, but what if you're in need of aspirin to quell the "ache" caused by another "flare up" of arthritis? By creating a 'Pollyanna' view of old age, you put the onus of living up to this glorified image squarely on those people you are trying to empower. Suddenly, an old person is at fault if he is in pain; he is not growing old the way he is supposed to; something's wrong with him, and not just his arthritis. What did he do wrong to deserve such suffering?

Like it or not, infirmity and pain are often part of old age. Bones ache, bladders lose control, we stumble and fall, or forget what happened last week. That is normal.

It's the manipulation of words, trying to falsify an image, which is harmful. And trying to be too nice with our names can hurt people just as much as being too nasty.

Businesses are responding—at last

NORTHERN LIGHTS

VIRGINIA MUENZEL

IMAGINE THAT! Sunlight and Tide both now produce a 100 per cent phosphate-free laundry detergent. All the time it took, was just long enough for them to see that the 'Friendly Green' ad campaign was working. Consumers were buying the 'Green' 100 per cent phosphate free product. Bingo! The big guys wanted a piece of the action. In fact, there's even a 100 per cent phosphate free dishwasher detergent on the shelves now. And you thought we consumers didn't have any pull.

The ad-men are scrambling. If you pay attention to the disposable diaper commercials, they are trying to justify their products by spreading the hype of "doctor's endorsements". Also, their "superdry" liner is claimed to be "safer" for baby's skin. If I had the money, I'd love to create an ad wherein as this baloney was running on half the TV screen, the other half showed a small, neighbourhood dump (like West Guilford) with used diapers dropping out of the sky (excrement and all) at approximately the rate they would actually hit the dump during the time it took to air that one commercial. With the usual bull-dozer pushing them around, and, of course, a few of them tumbling over the embankment, down to where a trickle of water runs by. The final printed statement super-imposed over a close-up of this picture "PAMPERS SUPER DRY DISPOSABLE DIAPERS! SAFER FOR YOUR BABIES?"

Someone asked me last week, "Where are all the pamphlets with the information?"

She thought there should be some readily available at all times. In fact, she felt they belonged in grocery stores right under the shelves with all the hazardous products. Leaflets listing alternative products, that won't pollute the water table after they've gone down our drains. Now that's tough thinking.

A lot of consumers are getting frustrated because of the lack of information. They have been telling us 'we're not tough enough'. They have complained to us that the dump recycling bins aren't working. The instructions aren't clear enough. There should be someone there who sees to it that everyone

Early rude awakening helps Novices to 4-4 tie

On Thursday, January 18 the Haliburton Spectra Novice Huskies opened the first round of the playoffs in Fenelon Falls. Having beaten Fenelon one week earlier the Huskies were confident. It did not take long before Fenelon brought them back to earth as they scored with less than one minute gone in the game.

After the rude awakening the Huskies came back checking and skating to even up the score when Greg Forgrave picked up the puck at centre ice and carried it into the Fenelon end, drawing three Fenelon players towards him. Forgrave feathered a pass to Mike Morissette, all alone in the slot, who made one deke before slipping the puck into the net.

Before the first was over Morissette carried the puck from Haliburton's blueline and shot it into Fenelon's end. Mike Craigen picked up the puck and shot on goal. Fenelon's goalie made the stop but left the puck lying on the goal line. Forgrave reached from the side of the net and gently tapped it in for the go-ahead goal.

Fenelon got that one back in the second period but on the next faceoff at centre ice, Morissette once more carried the puck and hit Forgrave with a pass in front of the net. With lots of time Forgrave picked his spot and lifted the puck into the net for his second of the game and to regain the lead for Haliburton. Shortly after Fenelon fired the puck down the ice. Defenceman Andrew Burtch raced back and headed for the net while a Fenelon player chased the puck to the boards. Burtch intercepted the shot on net, made a spin-a-rama move and cleared the puck to Morissette who was coming back. Morissette turned and headed back up ice with the 2 Fenelon defencemen between him and the goal. He took the long way around but ended up behind the defencemen with a clear shot on the goal to score his second of the game.

In the third period the Huskies tried to nurse their lead but Fenelon scored early in the period and tied it up with two minutes to go in the game. That's how it ended, a 4-4 tie.

Mike Morissette had his best game of the season figuring in all 4 scoring plays. Team leader Matthew Burk had a frustrating game as he rang the puck off a goal post in the first period, hit another post in the second and with 30 seconds left in the game was stopped by the goalie on a break-a-way (a rare occasion as Burk seldom misses).

With the memory of blowing a two goal lead and having to settle for a tie on Thursday the Huskies came out with determination on Sunday, January 21 when they hosted the same Fenelon team. The closeness of the two teams was evident from the first shift.

Fenelon, playing their big guns together and often, scored the only goal of the first period. In the second the Huskies picked up their pace. Devon Dart turned the play back into Fenelon's end where Mike Morissette took control and got a shot on net. Matthew Burk fired the rebound. Mike Craigen finished the play by banging away at the puck until he had pushed it over the goal line. After this goal Fenelon increased their efforts and hemmed the puck in the Haliburton end. At last it was Craigen who cleared the puck into the centre ice area and then caught up to it. Craigen kept his head up and seeing a Fenelon player coming back, he angled his way to the side of the net and Greg Forgrave who had moved into the goal area simply flipped the rebound into the wide open net.

With a one goal lead at the end of the second it was felt that the unusual rest time between the second and third periods would benefit Fenelon most as their better players had logged a great deal of ice time and should be tiring. Twenty-nine seconds into the third period Fenelon evened the score. But the Huskies came back. Once again it was Craigen who kept after the puck getting a shot on net. This time it was Mike Morissette who scored out of the scramble for the rebound in front of the net. From then until the end of the game the pace was fast but the Huskies protected their slim lead for a 3-2 win.

With a tie and a win Haliburton leads Fenelon Falls in the points to count playoff round. Both teams must now play the rugged Beaverton Novices twice (at home and at Beaverton).

PUCK WORK: Matthew Burk of the Haliburton Spectra Novice Huskies outskates a Fenelon Falls opponent in the second game of the playoffs on Sunday at the Dysart arena. The Novices went on to win 3-2.

FOILING THE ATTACK: Three Haliburton Novices keep a Fenelon Falls attacker at bay, helping them to win game two of the playoffs. The local boys now have a win and a tie, and will meet Beaverton next.

Bantams crow over win, hope to beat 1-1 tie

The Sport Stop Tri County Bantams earned a win and tie in regular season action last week. On Tuesday, the local boys travelled to Keswick where they defeated South Lake Homes 5-2. On Saturday, they hosted Sutton at the Dysart arena and had to settle for a 1-1 deadlock.

Haliburton opened the scoring in Keswick when Mike Gunning went in alone to beat the South Lake Homes netminder. Later in the period the Keswick team replied with a goal to tie the score.

In the second, Haliburton once again took the lead when Chad Bain connected with help from Mike Gunning and Paul Dovell. The Keswick team responded with a goal of their own just past the midway point, and the score stood at 2-2 going into the third.

The final period was an all Haliburton show in the scoring department, as they netted three goals in the space of four minutes late in the period to seal the victory. The sharpshooters for the Sport Stop boys were Mike Gunning with his second, Chad Bain with his second, and Paul Dovell.

Saturday's game was a close checking affair, with neither team able to gain a clear advantage. Sutton took the lead late in the second period and held on to it until the dying minutes of the third, when Todd Jackson teamed up with Mike Gunning to earn a tie.

Atoms make short work of Minden

Haliburton's OMHA Atoms made short work of their opponents from Minden on Friday night as the teams met at the Dysart arena for one of the final games of the season.

Joshua Brown scored two goals in the first period for Haliburton, the second of which proved to be the game winner, as Haliburton skated to a 5-1 win. Neither team scored in the second period. In the third, Minden's Andy McKelvey tallied unassisted to put his team back in the game, but their hopes were short-lived, as Haliburton kept the pressure on and scored three more goals, by Matt Galbraith, Billy Dovell and Joshua Burk, to ensure the victory.

The local Atoms will open their playoff schedule with a home game against Beaverton this Friday night at 7 p.m. at the Dysart arena.

MEET THE CHALLENGE

The Community Advisory Board at Kingston Psychiatric Hospital is currently seeking conscientious citizens with leadership ability who are interested and willing to contribute their time and talent to improve Mental Health Care services throughout the hospital's catchment area.

Kingston Psychiatric Hospital is a 400-bed accredited teaching facility affiliated with Queen's University dedicated to providing Mental Health Services to meet the needs of the community it serves.

The role of the Community Advisory Board is complex and challenging. Members are appointed by the Ontario Ministry of Health. Any person residing in the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital catchment area is eligible for appointment. This area includes: the Counties of Haliburton, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Renfrew, Frontenac and Lanark.

If you are interested or you wish to nominate a person (or persons) for appointment to the Board, please submit your resume or that of the nominee(s) no later than February 15, 1990 to:

Uxbridge rink undefeated at Skyline spiel

Barry Acton's Uxbridge rink was undefeated in five games to take top honours in the 31st annual Skyline bonspiel at the Haliburton curling club over the weekend. Acton, along with Wayne McArthur, Jim Markle and Kevin Gordon, won the Haliburton Lumber Trophy for their three day effort.

A number of local rinks were among the 32 four-somes from across southern Ontario who participated in the Haliburton club's biggest men's spiel, but none made it to the championship.

The B event, sponsored by Curry Motors, was won by the Oshawa rink of Jim Thertell, Wayne Thertell, Bill Wright and Dave Ralston. They lost their first game but went on to win the next four on route to the trophy.

The C championship final pitted the Uxbridge rink of Derrick Green, Craig Goslin, Phil Harrison and Steve Clarkson against the Haliburton rink of Art Dawson, Scott LaRue, Jerry Walker and John Watson. When the last rocks were thrown, the Uxbridge men came out on top, earning the Black's Hardware

Jasco Tykes blast off, 4-1

With home ice advantage and a lot of hard practising, the Jasco Drug Mart Tykes arrived at the Dysart arena on Saturday with nothing to fear from their Woodville opponents.

Early in the first period Chris Nimigon opened up the scoring unassisted. Ryan Wood, assisted by Chris Petrow and Justin Winder notched another goal for the Jasco boys. Joel Vanshalk scored for Woodville in the middle of the first, a hard feat with magician Travis Bain in net. Chris Nimigon then blazed up the ice for another unassisted goal, and ending the first period on a hot streak, Ryan Wood burned up the ice to score yet again for the Jasco boys, assisted by Ryan Chalmers.

Going into the second period, the Jasco boys had a solid lead of 4-1. Woodville was fighting hard but had difficulty getting past the Tykes' strong defense line, consisting of Jeff Wilson, Ryan Chalmers, Jamie Doan and Jeremy Mieske. Effective checking by the rest of the tyke's forward line—Scott Curry, Logan Roberts, Adam Henry, Justin Winder, and Chris Petro—also made it difficult for Woodville. Defensemen Jamie Doan, assisted by Chris Petro and Shane Campbell, notched another goal for the Jasco boys. To end the scoring in the second period, Chris Nimigon beat the Woodville net-minder, earning his first hat trick.

Woodville's Joel Vanshalk added his second goal of the game unassisted early in the third period.

Shane Campbell added another one for Haliburton on a side effort. Ryan Wood finished the game off in a flourish with another goal, which also gave him a hat trick. Jeremy Mieske assisted.

Overall, it was an excellent team effort that earned the local boys an 8-2 victory.

PeeWees repeat Lakefield win

Haliburton's Tri-County Pee-Wee's did it again. On January 13 the Pee-Wee's skated to a 2-0 win over Lakefield.

Both of the goals were scored by Colin Morrison. This young player has a lot of talent, which is proven by the many goals and assists he has executed so far this hockey season. Morrison's first goal was assisted by Ken Teasdale in the first period. As a result of some fine passing by Billy Koz and Mike Hartwick, Morrison's second goal was scored skillfully.

This game also added another shut-out to the record for goalie Jamie Cowen.

HEAVY TRAFFIC: The action was fierce behind the Barrie Colts netminder early in an exhibition game between the Colts and the Wexford Raiders at the Dysart arena on Saturday. The exhibition game raised more than $1,500 for the Haliburton minor hockey association and was attended by close to 600 fans.

Raiders help preview their play-off series

The Barrie Colts came out ahead on the scoreboard, but the big winner was Haliburton Minor Hockey as the Colts met the Wexford Raiders in the exhibition Jr. B hockey game at the Dysart arena on Saturday night.

Close to 600 fans were on hand to watch the Raiders, who roster includes Erin Nicholls of West Guilford, take on the Barrie club in a preview of their playoff series.

"It couldn't have been a better night" said Brian Foster, one of the organizers. "It was good, clean hockey, and everybody enjoyed it."

Best of all, Haliburton Minor Hockey made more than $1500 from gate receipts and snack bar revenues, a return that more than justified the planning and organization that went into the evening.

In a gesture of appreciation to the teams before the game began, the 1988-89 Haliburton OMHA PeeWees, winners of the all Ontario championship in their division, presented each of the Wexford and Barrie players with a Haliburton minor hockey pennant and a municipal pin as souvenirs of their visit to the community.

WELCOME: Erin Nicholls, a native of West Guilford, (No. 16 at centre) was the main attraction as his Junior B Wexford Raiders met Barrie in an exhibition game in Haliburton. Before the game began, members of the 1988-89 all-Ontario champion Haliburton PeeWees presented both teams with souvenir pennants and pins.

Fans cheer Newfer's return

THIS WEEK IN THE M.H.L.

YOUNGDALE'S Fuels and Emmerson Lumber got things rolling on Sunday night. The game started a little late because of the standing ovation given to Newfer Burke. Fans threw streamers and confetti all over the ice. What a mess. Anyway, welcome back Andrew. Youngdale's put on another strong performance this week beating the lumbermen 11-5. The win puts Youngdale's another step closer to the league championship. The loss stops Emmerson Lumber's recent winning streak at two games. Fighting the uphill battle were Billy Whittaker, Frank Powers and Roy Scott with a hat trick. Cruising downhill were Norm Barry (2), Mike Rae (3), Dennis McKee (2) and Bernie Upton with four.

The "Game of the Week" award goes to Vasey Insurance and Roberts-Austin fuels for their hard fought battle which almost ended in a tie. Pittsburg can have Mario Lemieux. We've got all the entertainment we need right here. Chris Mawbey was the star of this one. His goal, which came with only two minutes left, proved to be the winner, as the fuelmen edged the brokers by a 5-4 count. Other Roberts-Austin points came from Kevin Phillips, Stuart Baker, Phil Barry and Steve Cooper. Vasey Insurance's four points were the result of fine efforts by Joe Roberts, John Clements and Doctor Drew with two. Nice pair Carrot!

Game three was quite the Jeckyll and Hyde story. A struggling Haliburton Lumber took on the recently hot team of Bishop and Wilson. The play went from end to end all night, but when the final horn sounded the roles were reversed. Haliburton Lumber left the ice looking warm while the surveyors shivered all the way to the dressing room. Final score—H.L. 7, B&W 5. Scoring for the lumbermen were Roy Boughner, Dan Curry, Floyd Henry and Rod Sisson. Bishop and Wilson goals came from Wade Stamp, Keith MacPherson and Chuck Clarkson. Special mention goes to Kevin Finch for his assistance not only this week but all season long. Finch played back to back games as he filled in for Steve Kirkpatrick earlier. Take a well deserved bow Kevin!

Do you really want me to tell you about game four? If you play for Curry Motors you probably do. This was the night that General Motors finally got even with Iaccoca for jumping ship and joining Chrysler a few years ago. Currys beat Elstones 14-2. For Chrysler it was Ed Davis and Rick Rutting with a point each. For GM it was Ron Yake (5 goals, 4 assists), Barry Boice (2 goals, 6 assists), Tony Scheffee (3 goals, 3 assists), Glen Scully (1 goal, 3 assists) and Brian Mulholland with three goals. Where is my K-car...?

I'm Chip and that was. THIS WEEK IN THE M.H.L.

trophy. The winning rink lost only once, in their second game, to emerge atop the C final.

In the D event, the Haliburton rink of John Wilson, Paul Wilson, Terry Lloyd and Rene Bonfield were challenged by the Woodville rink of Joe Willemse, Charlie McDonald, Paul Otter and Jerry Heitzner. The Woodville men earned the victory and the D event trophy, sponsored by Dawson Insurance.

Although he didn't earn a trophy, one Haliburton curler had reason to be pleased with his performance at the Skyline. Ray Scott participated in the first Skyline spiel in 1959, and he has entered a rink every year since, the only person to have participated 31 Skyline spiels. It's a record he intends to keep breaking for many Skyline's to come.

Three more spiels are on the calendar at the Haliburton curling club — the PineStone mixed on February 10, a ladies spiel on March 3, and the Highland Mixed to wind up the season on March 31 and April 1.

Redmen battle with rivals

Haliburton high school's Redmen hockey team is battling to earn a place in the playoffs, and coach Ron Yake thinks his team can do it if they come on strongly in the last four games of the regular season.

"If we win three out of four games, which is very possible, we'll have a good chance of making the playoffs", said Yake.

The key game in the Redmen's playoff hopes takes place next Wednesday, when they face off against Port Hope at the Dysart arena. With a record of three wins, nine losses and one tie so far this season, the Redmen must defeat the visitors to have a chance of earning one of the four playoff positions in the six team league.

Last week, the Redmen met their arch rivals from Fenelon Falls, a team that is also in the running for one of the final playoff spots. The Redmen were trailing 5-2 at one point, but battled back to within one goal before time ran out on their hopes for a

Bernie Nicholls' spirits picking up after trade

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

THREE DAYS AFTER his trade to the New York Rangers, West Guilford native Bernie Nicholls was still bitter about the deal but more optimistic about his future.

"He called from Pittsburgh on Saturday night (just after the trade was officially announced) and we were all quite upset at first," said the former L.A. Kings centre's mother, Marjorie Nicholls, in a telephone interview Monday night. "But he called today on his way to Edmonton with the Rangers and he seemed happy."

The trade is also hard on Nicholls' wife, Heather, who was born in Southern California and is an only child. "Her parents are really upset and angry," and in the Globe, Heather Nicholls is quoted as saying "I'm sick about it. I'm sad. I'm leaving home and it's hard."

Rumours had been heard that week about the trade but Nicholls felt he would end his National Hockey League career with the same team he began it with nine years ago. The 28-year-old centre had recently signed a five-year, $3.65-million contract with the Kings and got along well with the team's owner, Bruce MacNall, coach Tom Webster and of course, teammate Wayne Gretzky.

However, it appears all was not well with general manager, Rogie Vachon, who Nicholls says got "the raw end of the deal" in the trade for Tomas Sandstrom and Tony Granato, a Globe and Mail story said.

"It's not very professional," Nicholls said about the way he found out about the deal Saturday afternoon after an all-star skills competition.

"He can't understand the deal which was made," says Mrs. Nicholls. Since the trade, her son has had a meeting with MacNall, "who's really standing behind him."

It was MacNall who convinced Nicholls to invest in a million-dollar home in L.A., says Mrs. Nicholls, and it's also MacNall who's now convinced him to hold onto it. "(MacNall) told Bernie to get a home in New York and he'd pay the rent. It's a really funny situation."

Mrs. Nicholls is angry about the way the media has been reporting Nicholls' "slump." She knows a different side of the story. "I don't think when you're in third place out of 400 players you're in a slump."

About a month ago, Nicholls hurt his knee and his ankle "and he couldn't skate," says Mrs. Nicholls. "He said he wasn't playing and come game time, there he is out there. But ever since, his knee's been bothering him. And he had minor surgery Friday morning on his bladder and was in Pittsburgh the next day."

But every cloud has a silver lining if you search hard enough, and Nicholls is able to make jokes about the trade. "When he called me Saturday night, he said 'You didn't want me out there in L.A. because of all the earthquakes, and now I'm going where the muggers are.'"

The Nicholls family and fans will also be able to visit Nicholls more often, now that he's in New York. His father, George, and his sisters had airplane tickets in hand for a Saturday flight to L.A. but now they'll be making a nine-hour drive to New York when the opportunity presents itself. (Mrs. Nicholls doesn't like the hot weather so she'll be able to visit more as well.)

In an interview with the Echo last summer, Nicholls talked about how happy he was in Los Angeles, where he could pursue his second-favourite game—golf—in the balmy sunshine. He felt sorry for the northern players who had the snow and early nightfall to contend with.

Now it appears he'll have to again become accustomed to the cold winter wind which used to blow across the "Tag Alder Gardens" beside the West Guilford school. The move to New York will be a bit like coming home (to familiar weather, at least) and Nicholls is now determined to show the Kings what those Northern players can do.

win or tie.

The remaining schedule includes next Wednesday's home game against Port Hope, with a 7:30 p.m. start; another home game on Monday, February 5, with an 8 p.m. start against Lindsay Collegiate; the final home game of the season Wednesday, February 7 against Clarke, with a 7:30 faceoff time, and the final season game February 9 on the road against Clarke.

One or more of the Redmen are also expected to participate in an All Star game on Friday, February 2 in Peterborough.

Local marine dealers hope for strong sales

by LEN PIZZEY
Publisher

LOCAL MARINE DEALERS are cautiously optimistic that sales of new boats will remain strong this year, despite the fact that attendance at the Toronto International Boat Show, which ended a 10 day run on Sunday, was down, and many consumers appear worried about the prospects of higher taxes, high interest rates and a 'made in Canada' recession.

Bill McGillivray of Walsten Marine said he was pleased with the mood of consumers at the show, even if there were fewer of them than in previous years.

"Overall, from our point of view, sales figures were about on a par" with past shows, said McGillivray, who spent the week at the Invader Boats booth. "The people are buying" he said. "They're very interested." He predicts 1990 will be another good year in the marine business, after at least two years of record industry sales.

In recent years, the trend in the marine industry has been toward larger and larger boats, with aft cabin cruisers in the 25 to 30 foot range — large enough to live aboard for weekends and longer cruises but small enough to be easily docked and handled — carving out a growing niche in the marketplace. But with price tags that begin at about $50,000 and rise to well over $100,000 for a 30 footer, this segment is particularly vulnerable to consumer caution. Canadian manufacturers have been squeezed not only by Canadian interest rates, but by intense competition from U.S. builders, whose production costs are lower and whose quality is equal to or better than many Canadiana builders. Thundercraft and Peterborough, two well known Canadian builders, recently went into receivership, and Grew, once Canada's premier small boat builder, folded two years ago, though it has recently been revived under new ownership. Canada's biggest boat manufacturer, Doral, is building a plant in the United States, and intends to close down its Quebec plant eventually.

McGillivray said the presence of American builders at the show was very noticeable. They ac-

There was a lot of dreaming but not a lot of buying at the Toronto International Boat show last week. But spring fever usually hits prospective boaters hard, and local dealers remain optimistic.

Bill McGillivray, right of Walsten Marine spoke with a steady stream of potential boat buyers at the Invader display at the Toronto International Boat Show last week. Despite the fact that attendance was down at the show, he predicts another strong year is underway for the marine industry. Interest in small boats is strong, he says, even if sales of some of the larger models are languishing.

Wes Lytle, right, of Allsaw Bridge Marine, gives a customer some details on one of the Larson boats he sells at his marina on Lake Kashagawigamog. Boat enthusiasts love to 'kick the tires' at major shows, and they had plenty to look at. More than 1200 vessels were on display at the Boat Show.

Todd Lanigan, right, of Haliburton Marine spent all of his time at the boat show answering people's queries at the Sunray Boats display. Attendance was down at this year's show, and many people are blaming recessions fears for the consumer caution that seemed to be in evidence. There was no caution at the high end of the scale, however. More than one boat in the half million dollar range displayed a 'sold' sign by the end of the show's 10 day run on Sunday.

Norm Perrot, right, of Lakeshore Boat Repair in Haliburton, discusses Vanguard boats with a prospective customer at the Toronto International Boat Show. The show allows retailers and manufacturers to display their wares, and gives purchasers an opportunity to compare prices as well as features and quality.

uses the bins, and correctly. They complain that when someone is there, he is usually just sitting in a truck. Hear that, council?

We are also hearing pleas for ways and depots to get rid of our hazardous wastes. And they are absolutely right! If we want this community to stop dumping used oil, anti-freeze, dried up paint and varnish, drain cleaners, old batteries, and the list is horrendous—we must act. There are ways!

There is a professional firm in Thoreau that will collect hazardous wastes several times a year. They put the stuff into dated, carefully labelled drums and take it to their plant, where some inflammables are recycled as fuel. Some of the chemicals are neutralized. The rest is disposed of properly.

Our gas stations and/or auto repair shops could be encouraged to have permanent collection points for used oil, old batteries, and used anti-freeze. Did you know, for instance that anti-freeze is recyclable? It can be collected, filtered and with the re-addition of the burned off ingredients, put right back in your car.

'Let your municipal governments know you expect them to make a few rules. That as a consumer, you understand the dollar and cents issues.'

We are the people—you and I—who can make these very things happen. Just start asking for them, persistently. Let it be known that you would rather deal with businesses that are 'environmentally conscientious'.

Let your municipal governments know that you expect them to make a few rules. That as a consumer, you understand the dollars and cents issues. It's a whole lot cheaper in the long run, to keep the levels of garbage in the dumps low in the first place. Because the alternative is to pay for a few million-dollar, several-year-long studies to decide whose backyard the next landfill site will decorate. And then, we have to buy the land, pay the lawyers to fight the people who object, and maybe begin the whole process again. (You have been watching the news, haven't you?)

Unless I'm mistaken, every one of our dump sites is nearly full to capacity. If you think it will cost too much money to hire the people to clean up our act now, quadruple that amount, and you may have some idea of how high our taxes could go in a very few years when we have to replace every dump site in Haliburton.

Now is a good time to let our municipalities know that we would rather pay for:

- 1) Regular hazardous waste collections
- 2) Carefully regulated and supervised dump sites (by someone who earns his wage);
- 3) Enforcing recycling practices and penalizing persons or businesses who blatantly dump poisonous substances into our precious environment;
- 4) Information pamphlets available and visible where they do the most good.

We are the consumer. We hold the money. We have the power. Let's use it!

Airport committee's role debated

However, she added that at a committee meeting when the matter of Carey's position on committee came up, both Daniels and Reeve Harry Davis had an obligation to give council's viewpoint, which they didn't.

"Something should have been said then," she said. "You led a dedicated group of people astray and let the committee think you agreed (with Carey being a voting member.)"

"I don't think a paid employee should sit on a volunteer committee," said Daniels, pointing out that Clerk-administrator Gerald Bain is not on any committee to avoid possible conflicts.

When a vote was first taken, the motion read "that Mike Carey be appointed to the Airport Committee as an Associate Member and as the liaison representative between Council and the Airport Committee." Davis and Daniels voted nay; Harrison, Barker and Councillor Fred Gardner voted yea; the motion was passed.

However, after a bit more discussion, Gardner said he had "missed" the part about liaison and felt that should still be the council representative's role. The motion was amended to delete the last phrase and carried without a recorded vote.

Earlier in the meeting, Davis had suggested the committee be reduced to eight members from 15, but Rolfe didn't agree. "We have a number now that seems to work and if there's any need for reduction, perhaps it could be left (until people retire or resign)," Rolfe said.

No decision was made on the committee's size.

*Guarantee period expires September 30, 1990, and applies to 1990 models only. - Plymouth Voyager, Dodge Caravan.
These offers are mutually exclusive and apply to purchase for personal use only. Those qualified buyers choosing a reduced financing rate in lieu of cash rebate on selected vehicles are eligible for 6.9% financing over maximum 24 month term. For longer term loans, other low financing rates are available as alternatives to cash rebates. See Dealer for details. Transactions are subject to Chrysler Canada Credit Ltd. approval on purchase and delivery at participating Chrysler Canada Ltd. Dealers from December 18, 1989 through close-of-business January 31, 1990. Delivery must be taken from existing Dealer inventory. Financing offers exclude fleet orders and retail lease vehicles. The offers cancel and replace any and all previous offers and may not be combined. Example: if the amount financed is $10,000 on the purchase of a vehicle for a term of 24 months, the financing rate would be 6.9% APR, with a monthly payment of $447.27 for 24 months. Total cost of borrowing is $734.48. Assuming a rebate of $1500 as the alternative, should you choose a reduced financing rate instead of cash rebate, legislation requires that the amount of the rebate not taken be included in calculating the cost of borrowing in order to arrive at an effective interest rate. In the example given, the cost of borrowing, including the rebate not taken, would be $2,234.48 resulting in an effective interest rate of 24.50%. For 6.9% APR and 9.9% APR, the following applies, respectively, to the preceding example: Cost of borrowing: $1,431.08; $2,151.20. Monthly payments $317.53; $253.15. Effective interest rates: 20.39%; 18.76%. Cost of borrowing, including rebate not taken: $2,931.08; $3,851.20. Buyers must pay for transportation, license, taxes, and other fees such as registration. Retail lease vehicles are eligible for cash rebate only. See Dealer for details.

They also want me to pay Bob Lehman, their planner, $1500 to tell me how to do my development. Under Minden's official plan, my property is designated Village Commercial and in 1985 they and Bob Lehman designated it Village Commercial and now they want me to pay $1500 for him to tell me how to do it. I believe my engineer and I already know how to develop and I thought this is what the Planning Advisory Committee gets paid for; is to make decisions instead of letting Bob Lehman the Planner make them all. They have asked me to include my property in with my wife's property in a plan of subdivision. Even though it is separate ownership which makes it technically separate properties and I would have to do two plans of subdivision. They said morally it's all one property. I think it's ironic that they would talk about moral issues, one would suspect that they don't practice what they preach.

Bern Berry said to me you live with your wife and if you had a divorce, you both live together, I suspect in the same household so you would be entitled to 50 percent and she gets 50 percent. I am sure if it worked out this way anyone wanting a divorce may consider using Bern Berry for this excellent piece of wisdom or would one suspect he is trying to be catty. The ironic part of the whole thing is my wife has asked Council (PAC member) to ask Verne Graham and the Chairman, Dean Elliott to resign from their position on the Planning Advisory Committee because we believe they are in Conflict of Interest when we deal with the Mount Minden Valley View subdivision owned by my wife and my property that was formerly Dave Robertson's property where the denture therapist lived.

Both are within 400' of the property on the Mountain and Dean Elliott is within 400' of my property. Reeve Ray Moore always declares a Conflict of Interest because his family is putting in a bowling alley beside our property. However, on Thursday, January 18, 1990 and previous dates neither Verne Graham nor Dean Elliott declared a conflict of interest and both are paid members, and I believe in Conflict of Interest because of the proximity of their property in relation to ours. Another ironic gesture that took place at the meeting was Dean Elliott left his chair as Chairman without notifying anyone and went out to the coffee room and was seen and heard having a conversation with the Reeve who just declared a Conflict of Interest. Then he came back to his chair and continued to talk on the matter. I ask the general public and council what kind of Gong Show is this!

They have agreed to rezone my property site specific because they did not want to allow a gas station or used car lot that is permitted in a CI zone.

Although they agreed last summer to rezone it commercial, Bern Berry cannot see a commercial plaza down in front of a beautiful house. I have continuously explained that my house will not be a house but a professional office and I will build a new house up on top of the mountain. Then the chairman pipes up and says well you live in your house and you're in a residential area. I said yes I live in my house and with the new zoning would enjoy a legal non-conforming use. However, I don't believe I am in a residential area because the area is designated village commercial under the official plan which will eventually be all commercial, like the new proposed bowling alley next door. They said but it's not yet and people live in it do they not.

It appears to me the Chairman and Planning Advisory Committee want my property to stay residential even though the official plan designates it as village commercial and they have agreed to rezone it commercial. However, because of some reason they're not telling they have chosen to give me the royal jerk-around. The bottom line is I am going to submit my proposal to the council and the land division committee and if the municipality denies my application or refuses to deal with it, I will appeal their decision to the Land Division Committee, and if necessary appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board, and if my severances are granted, sue the municipality for a royal jerk-around for no apparent reason; other than some people don't understand or don't want to understand.

I hate to resort to these measures. However, when you are put to the test you come out fighting at any cost.

Respectfully submitted for the taxpayer's benefit.

Yours truly,

Bradley Bradamore,
Minden

Weather irks snowmobiler

DOWN OUR ROAD SHARON LYNCH

There'd be no moon to light the trail tonight, just a wet wall that would dribble down his neck. Thanking the man for the hot chocolate, he gave Sam one more pat on the head and went outside. He had been invited to help himself to the use of the fish hut anytime he wanted and he thought he just might take up that offer this coming week. But now it was time to get home.

He enjoyed these visits to the little cabin. It was a beautiful spot with the valley stretched out in front of it and the lake far below, like a basin of water, small, flat and round. If it wasn't for the snowmobile, he'd never come in the winter, for the road was too unpredictable. The slushy snow was really coming down now as he bumped his way over the trail toward home. What was needed was dry fluffy flakes to smooth out the lumpy terrain, he thought, wiping the moisture from his visor.

He heard a sound behind him and turned to see another snowmobile fast approaching. Pulling over to let it go by, he marvelled at its speed in these damp, bumpy conditions. The rider will probably feel like a milk shake after that trip, he thought as he continued to putter down to the road near his place. To each his own.

Editor's note: This column was written before Saturday night's accident in which three snowmobilers drowned in Halls Lake. In no way does this column reflect on this specific accident or its circumstances.

Marine dealers keep up on trends counted for about 80 percent of all the small and medium sized boats on display, a major change from a few years ago. Sales of small boats have been stale in the U.S. for the past couple of years, said McGillivray, a factor that has caused them to turn their eyes northward, to the substantial Canadian pleasure boat market.

While sales of medium sized boats were spotty, McGillivray said there is still a strong demand for runabouts, the kind of boats that appeal to cottagers on small bodies of water.

Todd Lanigan of Haliburton Marine, one of the dealers who manned the Sunray booth at the show, said he sold about as many boats at the show as in previous years, but he noted a sense of caution brought on by reports of a recession in the offing.

"The consumer is wiser today, and more apt to shop" at several of the boat shows that are held every year. Many of them are "just waiting to see what the economy is going to do" before committing themselves to a major purchase so early in the year, Lanigan said.

Demand remains strong for small boats, he said, but some of the people he spoke with said they intended to wait until spring before buying a boat. (Traditionally, boats are less expensive at the boat show than later in the year, an inticement for consumers to buy the vessel of their dreams while the lakes are still thick with ice).

Those who are in the market for a new boat will have at least two more opportunities to comparison shop before the warm weather returns. A power boat show is planned for the Skydome next month, and in March, a spring boat show is held at the international centre in Toronto.

Most local marine dealers participated in the Toronto show, both to keep up with trends in the industry and to staff displays of the major boat brands they sell.

BUSINESS NEWS

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

WHEN TED BRANDON CALLS Northland a "bread and butter" store, he's not referring to groceries. But he's still describing the type of stock to be found in Haliburton's newest store. Instead of boutique items, shoppers will find back-to-the-basics clothing and shoes—durable, good quality, and without the fancy labels.

"Our main focus is workwear and casualwear, not high fashion," says the co-owner and manager. Patrons of Northland Sales and Northland Footwear in Minden—where brother Stuart minds the stores—already know exactly what he means.

"Our philosophy is to keep the prices low and never have sales," the younger Brandon says. Mark-up on the items is so marginal, he adds, "we couldn't afford to have a sale." Besides that, by not having sales, "no one is mad because they paid $100 for something and two weeks later it's $60."

Questioning a good deal

Sometimes the low prices can create a misconception. "People think the merchandise isn't always top quality if they pay $36 for jeans here and in Peterborough they're $49." But the Red Tag Levi's—a popular seller at Brandon's—are the same as can be found anywhere else.

Northland will do everything in its power to convince shoppers it's wise to shop locally, and not only for the good prices. "If every store was busier, then we could afford to have more selection and it would snowball."

Last year, a service club approached Northland Sales—they're thinking about dropping the Sales—in Minden. It wanted the store to donate money to hire a bus to take residents Christmas shopping in the city. Not surprisingly, Northland Sales said no.

They'll be able to say yes to donation requests if more people make it their business to patronize local business, Brandon says. "Then we can afford to keep staff on and donate things. Some people don't realize that by shopping locally, we have more chance to do that sort of thing."

Keeping staff on at Northland is very important, and as winter's slow season approaches, Northland won't cut back to cut costs. Mr. Brandon admits he'd feel lonely working by himself at the store, but there's more to his decision to have two other staff members on duty with him.

A little bit of Minden...

After serving Haliburton customers at their Minden stores, the Brandons open a Highland St. Northland

Peggie Gordon and Ted Brandon at the Haliburton Northland

"If I go to a store and I stand around for more than one minute with a question mark on my face, I leave," he says. "On the other hand, you don't want to be harassed."

It's not only the customers he's thinking of, though. "We want staff to treat the store like it is their own—we don't want it to be just a job."

This approach to running a store has been bred into both Brandon brothers, who spent their childhood watching the wise business ways of their father, the late Charles "Slim" Brandon.

Northland Sales in Minden is one of those one-stop stores for outdoor needs. There you can get your hip-waders, fishing pole and tackle—and if you're a ice fisherman, long underwear and jackets in extra-large sizes—all in the same place. This is because if more than one person came into the store looking for something, Mr. Brandon (senior) would make sure it was there the next time someone came in.

"We've had some flops but we've had successes, too" with this approach, says Ted Brandon. A flop? Thinking Minden needed the store to become a paint merchandiser. "We used all of the paint to paint the stores."

When it came time for Ted Brandon to study business at school, he found his father's philosophy stood him in good stead. "Things I thought everybody knew, they were going through great lengths to explain."

After working at a Toronto jewellery store for three years, Mr. Brandon returned to Minden where he helped to open Northland Footwear in the old Home Hardware building. Because of the number of Haliburton shoppers visiting both stores, the brothers were simply waiting for the opportunity to expand into Haliburton.

Twos a fortnight before Christmas...

Cordell Interiors' move up the street provided such an opportunity, and just before Christmas, Northland moved in to the store on the west end of the main street. Only problem was most of their suppliers were out of winter stock, so some shoppers were disappointed that Northland in Haliburton wasn't as well stocked as Northland in Minden.

All that will change by summer, Brandon reassures. The packed-to-the-rafters look in Minden will be seen here as salesmen make their rounds as the season's wear changes. However, in choosing stock, "we don't want to step on anyone's toes." Because Sports Stop already stocks sporting goods, Northland will just focus on clothing and footwear, although there will be some crossover with other stores.

Mr. Brandon is looking forward to the family's latest business venture. As his father before him felt, when there are shoppers who need service and quality, there is room for Northland.

SECTION 2

TORN APART

WHEN APRIL WAS NINE, a male member of her family molested her. For years, she kept the abuse and its emotional flotsam a secret but her behaviour eventually alerted others to her distress. Disclosure of the abuse was without details; to tell her parents exactly what happened would mean confronting the memory herself.

By this time, it was felt April—all names and some circumstances have been changed—would not make a good witness should charges be laid against the offender. Although April is angry, the fact that she would have to testify against a relative made a trial seem too formidable. "She's a very caring person," says her mother. "She couldn't say something that would hurt someone else."

Something had to be done to address April's emotional needs, however, and she was referred to Kinark Child and Family Services in Haliburton. There, she befriended Karoul Talaba, the woman who would help her through the maze of pain and anger.

"Karoul is very good, just by asking April questions," says April's mother. "She doesn't force her opinion but she makes you question what you think, in a positive way. April can discuss it with someone in a non-judgemental way. She's been convinced she was wronged and he should pay for it, but that time has passed and she accepts that."

After several months of counselling, April felt much better about herself so she stopped visiting Ms. Talaba.

In the meantime, April's parents divorced and she and a sister twice took the Kinark sessions for children of separated parents. Two things have happened since then. April's youngest sister, Cynthia, has displayed anti-social behaviour at school and is miserable about her inability to make friends. The opposite of her sister, "Cynthia is very outspoken and is not afraid of anyone," says her mother. But everyone her age is afraid of Cynthia. "I'm hoping Kinark will have some answers for me."

And April has realized the scars from the abuse haven't healed and she still needs help coping with the trauma.

Unfortunately, Cynthia has been on Kinark's waiting list since November. The children's mental health centre simply doesn't have enough staff to deal with the caseload and for the last few years, so many corners have been cut, there is no way to fit her in. Because Ms. Talaba is now Kinark's psychometrist, April is able to see her only because she is a former client.

That's lucky for April, but what about her three girlfriends at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School? The teenagers girls, afraid to tell anyone else and aware April was visiting Kinark, have told April they've been sexually abused. In at least one case it was incest, in another it was rape.

The sad endnote about this story is even if the other girls can muster up enough courage to seek help, Kinark probably doesn't have enough funds to provide it. The agency is hurting, too.

Child victims of sexual abuse experience a gamut of emotions which are best dealt with when they're young. But many children aren't getting the help they need because agencies such as Kinark Child and Family Services are grossly underfunded. Programs must be cut.

WHETHER TROUBLED YOUTH are a phenomenon of our times, or whether their needs are only now being addressed, one truth remains: The agencies trying to deal with these problems today are under-funded, understaffed, and sometimes, near the breaking point.

In Haliburton at any given time, 30 to 35 families are clients of Kinark Child and Family Services. On the waiting list—which can mean a wait of several months—are another 10 families, or roughly a quarter of the clientele.

Is this another example of the needs of smaller communities being shunted aside for those of larger centres, which attract the lion's share of funding? No. All over the province children and families are waiting for counselling. And waiting, and waiting.

"Sometimes we get the impression we're hard done by," says Andre Breton, director of the Haliburton service, "but when the Ontario association looked at it, everyone's in the same position. It's not specific to Kinark or Haliburton."

"It is a bit of an eye opener."

In 1989, there were 6,000 children on waiting lists and various children's mental health centres. It's estimated another 4,000 are not on waiting lists, simply because the lists are too long or they got tired of waiting. "Some agencies feel waiting lists are almost a disservice because it gives families a false hope," adds Mr. Breton.

The world got a chilling reminder last December of what can happen when a child's emotional problems are not addressed early. Marc Lepine, whose father was abusive, wasn't exposed to Kinark's counselling for children of broken homes. Perhaps if he had, his inability to develop solid relationships with women—and himself—might have been resolved. Instead, his anger and frustration finally turned outward and he murdered 14 young women in Montreal.

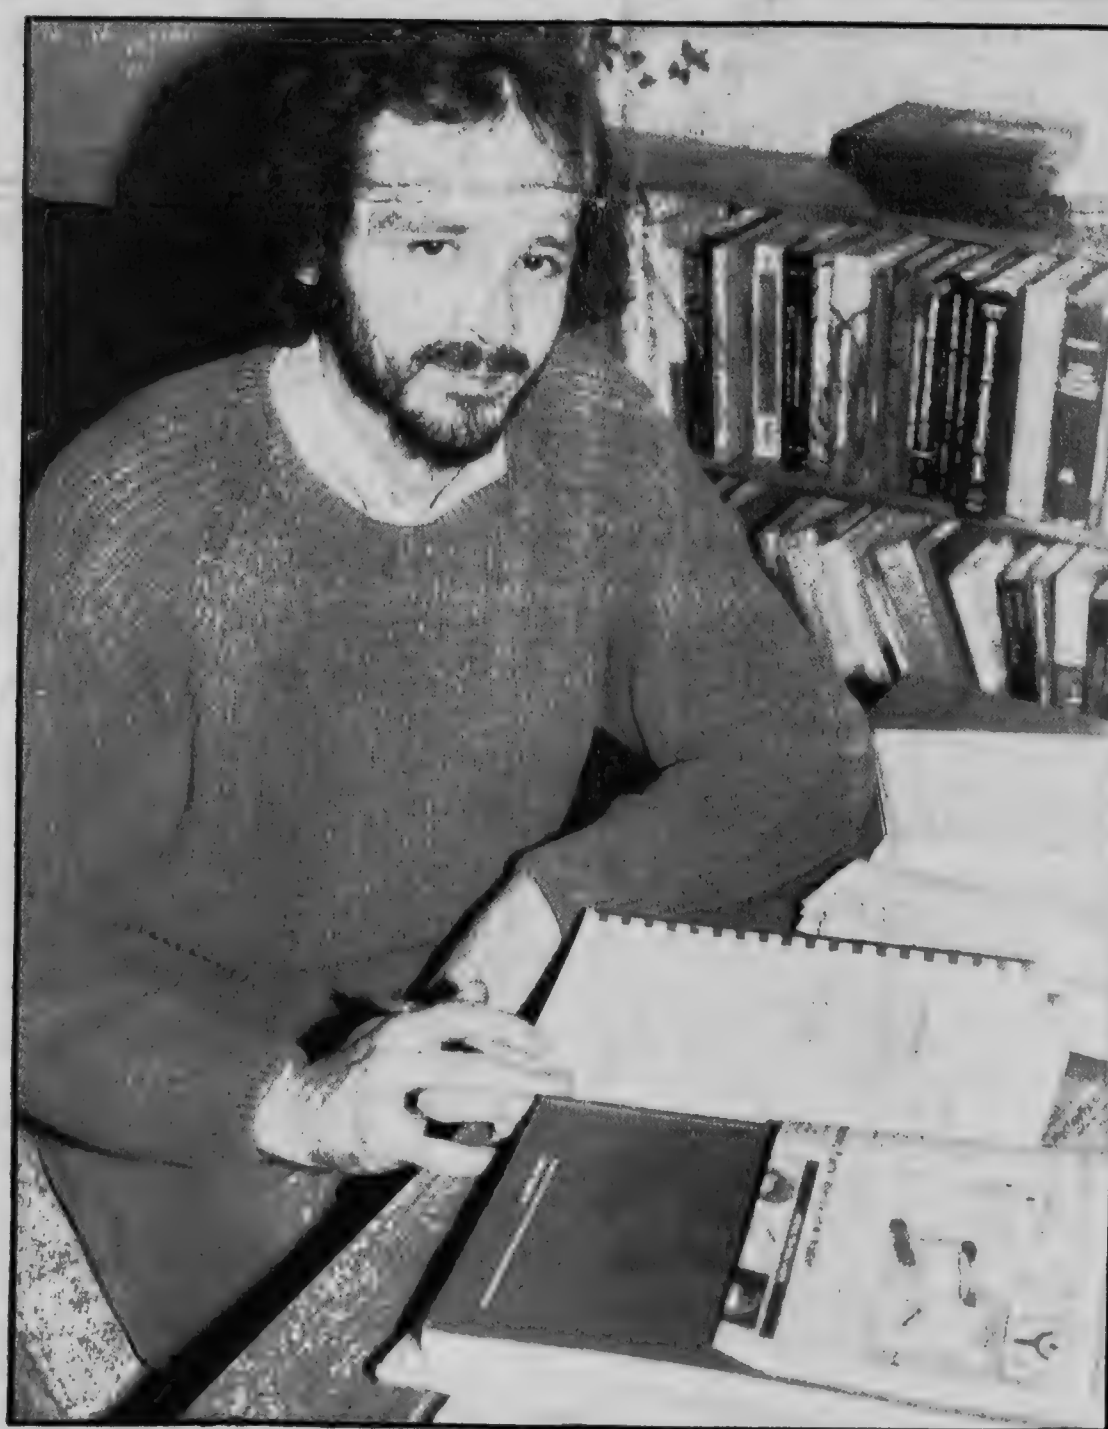

The cost to society in such situations is far greater than the cost of a counselling service. Yet Mr. Breton and Kinark feel they're banging their head against the wall every time they say they need more funds.

Kinark, a non-profit organization, is funded entirely by the Ministry of Community and Social Services, COMSOC. Haliburton's office includes Mr. Breton, a supervisor of family services, two family service workers, a psychometrist (more of a technician compared to a psychologist), and one full-time and one part-time office workers. Caroline Bishop runs the Infant Stimulation Program out of the office, and in conjunction with the board of education, Kinark has a school program with a part-time supervisor and two child and youth workers.

Every year, Kinark asks for more money to enable everyone to provide more services. "I could do the best study to show what the needs of Haliburton are and the Ministry will say 'Thank you very much, we'll give you four per cent (to cover the costs of inflation) again this year. You deal with it.'"

Demands rise faster than funding

As municipalities are discovering, while government ministries will not increase funding, they are also demanding more services be provided. Pay equity—which Mr. Breton philosophically endorses—is an example, along with the transfer of Ontario Health Insurance Plan costs from users to employers. This latter shift will cost Kinark an estimated $2,500 year, but COMSOC will not provide that $2,500. It's got to come out of the budget for services.

'For a child who's been sexually abused, there's no guarantee they will get treatment, even if they want it,' says Kinark's Andre Breton. 'If we're already full up and dealing with 18 crises, what can we do? We're going to have to cut programming'

"We will have to cut back at some point in time and we may have reached that point," says Mr. Breton. "We're going to have to cut programming. We're already doing as much economizing as we can and there's not much more we can tighten. We'll have to do business differently. We can't be all things for all people."

If those three friends of April, described in the story above, came into the Kinark office asking for help, Mr. Breton says the agency may have to say "We can't."

"For a child who's been sexually abused, there's no guarantee they will get treatment, even if they want it. If we're already full up and dealing with 18 crises, what can we do?"

"Kinark is different than family protection. If a girl discloses an abuse and it gets reported, the Children's Aid Society goes out immediately. But once it's investigated and the child needs treatment, if we're full up here we're not like the CAS, we can't say 'Budget be damned.'"

Certainly the wages do not have any fat on them, Mr. Breton says. Social work is one of those traditionally female occupations, which means workers are paid less than men in professions requiring equal training and skill.

When Mr. Breton was studying for his Masters degree in social work and people would ask him what he was doing, his answer would elicit a "That's nice" response. "It's not nice, it's a profession," he'd reply.

"Some people confuse social workers with do-gooders," he says today. True enough, there might have been a time when workers accepted their low pay out of the goodness of their heart, but like everything else, that attitude is changing.

"Recruitment is a real issue, particularly for residential programs. Brand new graduates would like to start at $30,000, please."

In the past, many workers in residential programs were young and fairly inexperienced. Who else would work nights and weekends, for very little pay? Since the hours haven't changed, nor the wages, not as many people are applying for these jobs now. "Young people don't want to do that anymore. I think sometimes their expectations, which are out of whack, create a real conflict."

At Kinark Haliburton, staff turnover is very low, which lends itself to a stable environment. But when a staff member does quit—often to accept a higher paying job in another ministry—the agency is thrown into turmoil. Karoul Talaba took over the psychometrist's position after the former psychometrist left after extensive training and only six months on the job. Ms. Talaba is doing well with the new position, but as the story of April and Cynthia shows, this means she must cut back on counselling.

The consequences of under-funding

However, another tragic event has shown a terrifying result of under-funding. Last year in Midland, a female residential worker, who was alone in a Kinark young offenders' residence (probably because the agency couldn't afford to hire more workers), was murdered by one of the residents. The inquiry is about to begin and will likely reveal even more dire consequences of what happens when agencies are pushed to the limits.

"I hate to be sensationalizing issues," says Mr. Breton. "However, troubled little kids grow up to be Marc Lepines and a Kinark worker is killed. This is crazy. Something has got to give. We've been putting up with (under-funding) for too long."

"People are asking us to do more with less money and at some point it becomes impossible to do it."

COMSOC believes it has a solution, Mr. Breton says. It would like us to go back to a world where boys wore funny hats at Beavers and girls learned camping skills at Guides. Meanwhile, the parents are volunteering in their community, smiling all the while, and of course staying together.

It will take a lot more political and social will to create such a community utopia. Until that happens, parents will continue to get divorced, lives will become more complex, drugs and alcohol will provide an alternative for coping for more people, and social agencies will have to hire more inexperienced graduates to deal with it all.

Mr. Breton and other workers in his field would like to make the point that if a child had leukemia, or a liver disorder, or a broken bone, that child's needs would be dealt with immediately, no questions asked. Mental illness, though, unlike physical health, seems to scare society away from demanding treatment. But as events will continue to prove, the problems of the mind and heart can be just as life-threatening.

Seniors' winter plan arranged

DORSET NEWS

by: PHYLLIS BRISCOE

We send birthday wishes to two previous members of our community, Marg Walkden of Niagara Falls and Dalton MacDonald of Huntsville. Both celebrate on the 18th. Birthday wishes are extended to David Bradbury on January 19. A belated wish to Kevin Nixon who celebrated his 8th birthday on the 13th. Sorry Kevin, we hope you had fun on your special day.

Marion and Walt Tyson had company from St. Catharines over the New Year holiday season. Their granddaughter, Linda Vadicon, Ron and Donna Hogan and daughter Ashley visited for the weekend.

We don't know whether to liken the snowmobilers to ants or other swarming creatures. They certainly make the land/sea scape look like there was an infestation of uncontrollable living things. The police and snowmobile clubs keep warning that the lakes are not safe but that does not deter the hearty or hardy snowmobile travellers. It will admit that when they come across the lake at night the long line of lights is a picturesque sight. It looks like a diamond necklace. But why don't they ever sleep? One of their routes onto the lake goes right near my bedroom window and Friday and Saturday nights they are travelling back and forth till dawn. Thank goodness they have to go back to work Sunday evening. I am sure they must get a lot of pleasure out of this form of entertainment. I really hope so anyway, and there are just a couple more months of winter.

The winter plan for the Senior club program is games for the first and third Wednesday, Bingo for the second and a film for the fourth. This is subject to change as the need arises.

H.H. To keep frost off the inside of windows add 1/2 cup of rubbing alcohol or anti-freeze to a quart of water. Apply with a sponge and wipe dry with crumpled newspaper or paper towels.

Intended for last week

There are lots of folks with January birthdays. A special one for Hazel Sears will be the big 80 on January 14. We wish her the best and many more. We wish Corey Crewson a happy birthday on the 14th also, when he will reach the tender age of 3. We wish a happy birthday to Joyce McKey on January 15 and Johnny Walker on the 16th, both 39 and holding. Dot and Art Lock enjoyed having family and friends over the holiday season. They entertained local family members for Christmas dinner and enjoyed visits with children and grandchildren from out of town during the week. One grand daughter had three friends visiting her from Australia, where she had spent a year, and they braved the elements to go skiing and really enjoyed it. Stan and Ellen Booker enjoyed a Christmas visit with their daughter, Lynda at her home in Cobourg. They said that it was cold there too.

Everyone has been guessing and speculating about who our new post master would be, but now we know. The name is going to be the same. Yes, John Clayton had the job for 42 years, his father Jack for the next 25, now the third generation takes over. I've told John that I promise to plan his retirement party—25 years hence!

A delightful luncheon party was enjoyed by the Dorset Senior Club last Wednesday when they were entertained at the home of Helen Sutton and Mary Fitz-Gibbon on Kawagama Lake. It was a very festive affair with delicious food topped off with Mary's famous Christmas Plum Pudding Flambe. There were 21 present, including members and one guest. Everyone enjoyed the conviviality and the event was concluded with a brief business meeting.

H.H. If store tomatoes are not quite ripe, do not refrigerate. Let ripen at room temperature, preferably in the dark, such as a drawer, with stem side up.

Students are preparing for air band auditions

NOTES FROM H.H.S.S.

by: ERIN LYNCH

YOU'RE SURROUNDED by people who look like they haven't slept for days, and probably haven't. There are lots of students sitting in front of lockers trying to study what they have missed. Telling your friends that you know you're going to fail, you really wish you had paid more attention in class, did your homework, not talked on the phone so much, not watched 21 Jump Street last night, and studied more.

Exams—the terrible fate we're stuck with twice a year. Oh how we hate them so much! I myself have said I hate exams 36 times today while looking at the endless pages of study notes and the thick text book that had to be close to memorized for tomorrow's exam! No matter who you are, or what kind of a student you are, no one likes them. If you're failing every class you're not going to be prepared very well; if you're the teacher's pet, they won't be behind you whispering the answers; and even if your average is 99 per cent you still have the anxiety and the tension that your mind may go completely blank as soon as the exam hits your desk.

What I think is the worst, is the five to ten minutes before the exam. Your stomach is in such a tight knot that you think you may have to send for an ambulance, causing you to miss your exam. There is so much tension with thoughts racing through your brain at 1000 km/hr that if you fail you may have to take this course again next year. Or what about the thought of your pen exploding or both the pens you plan to bring in running out of ink? What about the whole layout of the gym? You're all lined up in perfectly straight rows, the whole gym is full but nothing is said. The only sound is of teachers' footsteps as they pace back and forth along each side of your desk waiting for you to cheat.

Are exams even really necessary? I bet if I went up to every student, almost all would say no, and even reply that teachers make this scheme twice year to try and make students fail so they can perhaps torture students with another year of their presence. I don't think this is true. If exams were not necessary we probably would not have to write them. I am sure teacher's don't enjoy marking 10 to 12 page exams. So I hope everyone will survive these exams. If you hate them as much as I do, maybe this will make you try a little harder to get exempted from the June exams.

February 2 is the air band dance, so start practicing your song. Auditions are to start when exams are done, so try out. It proves to be even better this year.

Guild fibre artists demonstrate their craft

GUILD NOTES

by: SHIRLEY HODGSON

'THE WAITING ROOM' at the Rails' End Gallery is waiting for you! It has become a 'hive of activity' this month with numerous demonstrations by the various fibre artist of Haliburton County. On any given day (except Monday) you will be able to see artists busy with their favourite craft. There is a large ad in the Echo informing you of the different demonstrations. Special attention will be given to the younger children but of course, everyone is encouraged to try their hand at any of the various activities.

The artists have spent a lot of time preparing the Quilt, Rugs and Looms as well as knitting machines and they are most willing to share their knowledge with anyone who is interested; for instance—next Saturday, January 27th, there will be "Carding" (or combing) of the various colours of fleece. I'm sure the children will enjoy this.

"Character, like embroidery, is made stitch by stitch" says author Mary Lyon. Do you realize that we have at the Rails' End Gallery in the "Highland Room" some of the most delicate and beautiful embroidery in the world that has ever been done? This show, called "Tigers and Chrysanthemums", runs until February 10. There are about 55 pieces of

FIRST PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of Fish Stocking on Selected Waterbodies within Minden District

The Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden District is considering stocking the following waterbodies with the indicated fish species:

Lake	Township	Proposed Fish Species:
		1st Priority	2nd Priority
Concession	Galway	Lake Trout	Splake
South Anson	Anson	Lake Trout	Splake
Ketch	Hindon	Brook Trout	Splake
Bal	Guilford	Splake
Cinder	Hindon	Splake
Copper	Lutterworth	Splake
Poker	Hindon	Splake	Largemouth Bass
Smudge	Digby	Splake
West Victoria	Digby	Splake
Victoria	Digby	Rainbow Trout	Largemouth Bass
Sprat	Hindon	Rainbow Trout
Charles	Monmouth	Largemouth Bass
Nogles	Galway	Largemouth Bass

The fish species to be stocked in the candidate lakes are listed as 1st Priority and 2nd Priority. Since there appears to be suitable habitat (oxygen and temperature) for the 1st Priority species, those species will be stocked initially and later assessed as to the success of the plantings. The 2nd Priority species provides an alternative in the event that the 1st Priority species fails to become established and provide a viable fishery.

This is the first time these species have been stocked in these particular waterbodies. This stocking effort is being made in order to create new artificial and new self-sustaining fisheries, thereby providing additional angling opportunities for lake trout, brook trout, splake, rainbow trout and largemouth bass.

This project is being planned and implemented under this Ministry's Approved Class Environmental Assessment for Fish Stocking in New Waters.

You are invited to direct any questions or concerns regarding this proposal to the District Manager, Minden District by February 23, 1990. The opportunity to request an individual assessment is available, if necessary.

Final notice of the project will be issued only to those who reply to this notice and to those directly affected.

Increased Harcourt centre costs cause some concern

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by: WINNIE SCHOFIELD

Increase in operating costs for the Harcourt Community Centre has caused concern for the group of volunteers in charge of planning entertainment for the public. As an experiment for a future event there will be a return to attractions of the past. A family get together for an evening of fun will soon take place. Refreshments will consist of soft drinks and there will be no admission charged. Some live entertainment will be provided and there will be dancing to recorded music.

New families are invited to come and get acquainted with your neighbours. Those attending will be asked to bring a dish of food, perhaps a dessert. Come out and bring the children on Saturday, January 27 at 6pm to the Harcourt Community Centre.

The Wilberforce section of the Tri County Hockey League held its annual tournament on the weekend of January 12 with contestants coming from far and near. Winners of the A Division were from Clear View Farms in Toronto with the A runners-up Haliburton Senior Huskies. Winners of the B Division were the Oshawa Chiefs with the runners up from Maynooth. Tri hockey games are held on weekends with games taking place Fridays in Bancroft and Saturdays in Wilberforce. There are also occasional Sunday games played. Play offs begin in approximately two weeks' time.

Bob Park, general manager of the IGA store, sees January as the month for big winners of lottery tickets. 1988 and 1989 rewarded two tickets buyers with very substantial amounts and a couple of weeks ago Gwen Kennedy kept up the record with a $500 win on one of the new Wintario tickets. A nice surprise for a gloomy month.

The re-opening of the Legion Bingo games brought out a good crowd of loyal supporters. Euchre and Cribbage games will begin and be held on Thursday evenings at eight o'clock at the Legion hall. Everybody is welcome.

Taking a closer look:
A magnifying glass may come in handy at the Gallery's latest exhibit, 'Tigers and Chrysanthemums: 19th Century Chinese Embroidery'. The women who produced such intricate works of fibre art could sew magic into their wall hangings and decorative clothing, such as the child's hat at left. Here Susan Mielke of Toronto peers at the stitching while her mother, Ruth Amos of Minden stands back for an overall picture. The show runs Tuesday through Saturday until February 10.

It will be a great way to celebrate Canada Day or Dominion Day as it used to be called. Burns' Night tickets are still available from band members for Saturday night at the Haliburton Legion. They may also be purchased at the door. Band and dances will be tuning up and practicing for an hour or so beforehand. The programme begins with piping and the grand march.

A band reunion is being planned for August. It is 20 years since Branch 129 of the Legion sponsored the pipe band. Anyone who has been in the band during that time will be contacted in the hope of a successful gathering of pipers and drummers associated with the Legion.

Cora Lake feted on birthday

COBOCONK NEWS

by: SHEILA LAKE

Winners in the Coboconk Seniors and New Horizons club card games held on January 16 were as follows: Libby Wright, Thelma Adams, Frieda Boyce, Marjorie Lee, Ziggy, Peter Nykyforiak, Bruce Colquhoren, Maurice Watson, Adrian

Lee, Gord Wright, Tony Kenneth, Frank Dyon, Joe Heffer and Todd Edgson. Cora Lake had open house on January 14 on the occasion of her 90th birthday and had well over 100 visitors to enjoy sandwiches, cake, tea and coffee.

The Switzers from London, Ontario were visitors at Faith Tabernacle on January 14 for the 11am and the 7pm services. As usual their music was much appreciated. Dale Switzer's parents from Whitby, were in attendance at the morning service, as they were returning home to Whitby after visiting friends at Haliburton.

School buses were cancelled in our area due to the icy storm overnight on Tuesday and early Wednesday. There is still a lot of ice this Friday, as I write.

COMMUNITY NEWS

ESPIE/SICARD WEDDING: On December 9, 1989, Ken Espie and Jeannine Sicard were married at the West Guilford Community Centre. Best man was Les Daigle of Oshawa, maid of honour was Debbie Nesbitt of Oshawa, usher was Phil Greenwell of Lindsay, and bridesmaid was Tami Robitaille of Enniskillen.

JENNINGS/SISSON WEDDING: On December 2, 1989 at St. George's Anglican Church, Karen Elizabeth Sisson and Peter James Sidney Jennings were united in marriage. Karen is the daughter of Earle and Louise Sisson of Haliburton and Peter is the son of Bruce and the late Margaret Jennings of Gelert. The couple will reside in Gelert. Photo by Bruce Turner.

Seniors must re-apply for supplement funds

INFORMATION NEWS

by: DOREEN HAWMAN

The Ministry of Health and Welfare has recently mailed renewal applications for the (GIS) Guaranteed Income Supplement to all eligible Old Age Security recipients. The GIS is a supplementary amount added to the basic pension when a pensioner's income falls below a determined level. Applications are required each year since entitlement is based on the pensioner's income for the preceding calendar year, and if married, on the combined income of the husband and wife.

Before completing the form, it is very important that recipients wait until they have received all T4 slips for income received during 1989. T4 slips are issued from any of the following sources: retirement pension; superannuation or annuity; pension from another country (specifying the source and the amount in Canadian dollars); Canada Pension; Quebec Pension; interest from the bank, trust company, bonds or mortgages; employment; unemployment insurance benefit; rent; self employment; dividends or any other form of income. Be sure and retain all income information slips for income tax purposes. If the supplement form is completed without the true figures, it could cause a decrease in the amount received, or put the recipient in a pay-back situation at a later date.

If you are not receiving the supplement at the present time, perhaps you could be eligible. The following guidelines will help you determine your eligibility: Maximum income you can receive as a single OAS recipient—$9,720.00. Married (both pensioners) $12,672.00. Married (one 65 or over) $23,568.00.

If you have any questions, please contact your nearest Information Centre. In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10:00am—4:00pm or call 457-2733. If you reside in the Minden area, the centre, located in the Municipal Building, Milne St., is open Monday and Tuesday 10:00am—4:00pm or call 286-4100. Anyone living outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

Everyone can enjoy book

SENIOR LEAGUE

by: WINNIFRED BARNUM

Thursday started with Fun and Fitness to get our blood circulating.

In the afternoon the Martha Group from the United Church served us a beautiful lunch. One of the ladies played the piano and we had a good sing-song. We appreciate the ladies very much for both the sing-song and lunch.

Doris has started to read another book. This is mainly for the residents who can't see to read. Anyone is welcome to listen. I take advantage of this reading which I enjoy very much.

Friday was Happy Hour in the auditorium and Ursula Nietsch played the accordion to provide the entertainment. We thank her and appreciate her coming, also the volunteers who waited on the tables etc.

Last week I thanked Pat Campbell for the beautiful flowers but I omitted to mention the Donation Fund provided the funds to make it. Since we are thinking Christmas, on behalf of the residents I want to say how much we enjoyed the efforts of the Hyland Crest staff through the entire Christmas season.

Especially the nursing staff, housekeeping, laundry, and kitchen staff who provided the delicious tea parties during the Christmas week. All the staff was great and made our Christmas special.

I went to see my sister May Cameron who is still in Civic Hospital. My great nephew Clarke Yateman, his sister Deane Grant from Virginia Beach and her daughter Heather took me down Friday night and Jacqueline, my niece, her daughter Deane and her two grand children brought me home.

We were very sorry to hear that Marjory Bagshaw of Trenton passed away Saturday, January 13, 1990. She was the daughter of Ina McGuire, niece of May Horsley and cousin of Mark Schelle. We extend our sympathy to all her relatives and friends.

Sunday night chapel service was taken by Rev. John Burgess with Alice Jones playing the organ for us. Both are appreciated very much.

Pearl Lyle is well enough to be back in her own room again. Her daughter Jean and Anna (who has been sick also) were to see her Tuesday. Irene Roberts, Ruby Lewis's sister was to visit her Tuesday afternoon.

Congratulations to Hazel Hoskins who had a birthday January 15. We hope you have many more.

Monday night we were shown three movies by Ruth and Allan Rice. "Jungle Cats of the Amazon", "Island of Coral" and "Logdrivers". They were very interesting and we thank Ruth and Allan.

Tuesday Mrs. Marjorie Rennick came for a hymn sing with us. We enjoyed it and thank her sincerely.

Wednesday night Pastor Murray from Allsaw held a service in the main lounge, accompanied by some of his members.

Chinese women worked under bad conditions

Chinese embroidery, including garments and children's hats. These pieces have been selected from the permanent collection of the Museum of Textiles located in Toronto. They are mostly from the Qing Dynasty and were made during the first century A.D. Young girls began working on these articles practically as soon as they could manage a sewing needle - and probably had to stop sewing in their early 20's as their eyes would have given out. The conditions they worked under were unbelievable.

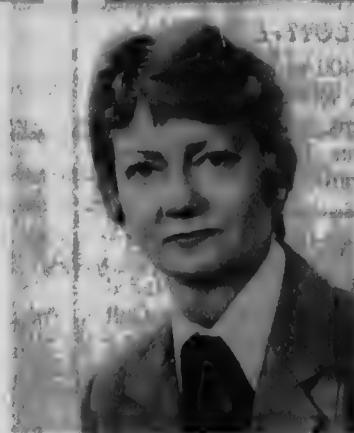

One of our Guild members, Dorothy Way, visited China in 1983. She went to the Soo Chow Embroidery Store and actually saw young girls working on silk panels in a basement with limited light. She said you could not take photos without a flash camera. Dorothy also showed us a silk square with very fine embroidery in one corner that was exactly the same on the reverse side. She said she was able to buy this for approximately $2. Can you imagine?

CONGRATULATIONS!

"They made the power of NUMBER 1 work for them."

ROBERT HEINZE
Sales Leader — 1989

DOROTHY MACKENZIE-PAYNE
Runner Up — 1989

Bob and Dorothy accepted the challenge of setting and achieving their own goals, and we commend them for attaining a high level of excellence and professionalism in 1989. We look forward to their continuing personal success in 1990, and the satisfaction of their many, many clients.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Service clubs provide many activities to attend

KINMOUNT & AREA NEWS

by: MILLIE MOSS

In the best interests of all the Victoria Road Social Committee has decided to discontinue the weekly card party in the Town Hall Victoria Road because of winter road conditions and inadequate parking around the hall. Games will resume in the spring.

Happy birthday to Bill Norman of Norland on Friday, January 12. Bill had to spend a good portion of his special day snowplowing.

Happy birthday to Gil Graham of Coboconk who celebrated his day Sunday, January 14 with family in Orillia followed by another birthday dinner on January 15 at the home of Mary and John Pyke in Norland.

Winner of the Norland Volunteer Firefighters Hockey Pool for Saturday, January 13 was Helen Graham of Norland.

Legion Ladies Auxiliary had 20 teams take part in zone Bowling Tournament at Lindsay on January 14. Teams were from Haliburton, Minden, Kinmount, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, Omemece, Brechin, Beaver, Woodville, Cannington, Sunderland, Coboconk and Fenelon Falls. Omemece took first place, Brechin was second, Sunderland was in third place and Coboconk team of Norma Hebert, Aggie Brown, June Franklin, Reta Henry, Brenda Pettit and Marg Short took fourth place. A fifth place was taken by one of the two Cannington teams. Congratulations to all those ladies who will now go on to District which will be held in Oshawa on March 10.

A Robert Burns night will be held at the Bobcaygeon Legion January 20 at 6:00 p.m. I'm told there will be a piper, haggis and a dance. Everyone welcome.

Due to road conditions and the illness of some members there were only six bowlers at the Fenelon Falls Lanes representing the Norland and Area Seniors on January 17. Winners were Marjorie Lee 444, Ross Short 429, Arlene Holden 362, Adrian Lee 359, John Pyke 335 and Isobel Hill 260.

The first meeting this year of the Norland and Area Seniors Executive took place January 11 in the Community Hall. Present were Don Giffen, Marjorie Fountain, Millie Moss, Aggie Brown, Helen Graham, Jean and George Crisp, Vera Brown, Nina and Gus Boyd, Ralph Purvis, Lloyd Brown and Hilda Chynoweth. Cards were sent out to the sick and bereaved. We were asked for a member to be on Recreation Committee of Council. Helen's name is to be sent in for this year to be on Committee for Senior Victoria County rep. report. Ed Coppins was made representative of this section for the Victoria County Board. The books were audited by Don Giffen and found correct. Seabright Seniors invited Norland Seniors to their Hall for cards January 16. A Funday is scheduled for the last Thursday afternoon each month. There will also be interchange euchre or fun day with other clubs. We will have two bus trips per year. Two bazaars will also be held: first on July 7, second on October 27. A yard sale was also discussed and it will be held August 4. The next executive meeting is April 12.

February is fund raising month for the Disaster Trust Fund. This dedicated group of people with representation in all areas of Victoria County work in cooperation with each fire department. The type of assistance given is meant to see the victim through the first twenty four hours until they themselves can adjust and deal with the problems at hand. It is not the intent of the Disaster Trust Fund to replace other agencies or the efforts of good neighbours and the community. However, sometimes there seems to be no one available just at the onset of such situations and a coordinator for the Disaster Fund will make sure the family have a place for the night, breakfast the next morning if needed and some clothing other than sleepwear. Often, good neighbours or family members are more than grateful for their assistance. The Disaster Fund is usually able to provide good used clothing through the generosity of the Salvation Army and special immediate needs such as diapers or a diet requirement will be attended to by the coordinator. Many of the school buses were cancelled January 17 due to the icy roads.

Happy birthday to Pearl Bradimore and Mary Pyke. It was good to see Syd Cilcus out to bingo at Kirkfield Lions Club on Tuesday evening, January 16 following a stay in hospital. A good crowd showed up for the bingo that evening and the Lions are looking forward to an even larger attendance at their lovely new club.

Everyone is cordially invited to come out to Norland Community Hall on Highway 35 on the first Thursday of every month beginning at 8:00 p.m. Just $2 for a great evening. There has been some misunderstanding that these dances are for Seniors only. One of our Seniors brings a grandson as her partner so all ages are definitely welcome...

The Norland and Area Seniors are planning a Fun Day for all seniors from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Norland Community Hall on the last Thursday of each month. There will be no charge.

Effie Grozelle and Mamie Dufty are recuperating at home following illness and Linda Cooper is at her mother's home following surgery with further surgery coming up at a later date...

Well folks, stay well and happy, read the Echo and give me a call at 454-2395 with your news.

Book borrowers keep the library very busy

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by: WINNIE SCHOFIELD

Monmouth library completed another busy year with a circulation of 11,465 books. Paperbacks are gaining in popularity with a record of 3,477 borrowed. Available are large print books and talking books. Talking books are recordings of stories on cassettes. These can be listened to for those whose eyesight is limited. Films may be borrowed for the VCR, they are chosen from a catalogue giving a description of the contents which may be crafts, nature studies and many other items of interest. The library has on hand all the latest magazines for adults and children.

The copy machine, purchased with money raised for the library staff and with contributions from local residents, clubs and businesses, has added a much needed service to the library. Enjoy fine winter reading, one of the few pleasures to be had with no cost involved.

Every community needs an angel, someone who gives unsparingly of their time and energy to make good things happen for others. We have had such an angel for many years now. She is Sylvia Cameron, whose life is devoted to many deserving causes. She has contributed the next two items.

The Christmas tree at St. Margaret's Anglican Church in December was again well laden with gifts for the needy. Some of the items were: 108 pairs of mitts, 23 toques, 9 scarves, 8 sweaters, 8 tea towels, 9 dish cloths, 15 pairs of children's socks, 12 pair slipperettes, 11 children's toys and 8 pair pants, also toys and numerous other articles. Some mitts were sent to the 4C's in Haliburton and to the Crossroads in Peterborough for women and children in crisis. A box of items was sent to the Church Army, one to Downtown church workers in Toronto, two to Scott Mission and two to Toronto City Mission. At present

St. Margaret's has a food drive to send food to the 4C's for people in need.

A few days before Christmas some senior citizens were pleasantly surprised to hear a knock at their door one evening. On answering the door, Santa stood there with his "elves" who sang a carol and presented the senior with a lovely box of fresh fruit and cookies along with a card from Teens of Wilberforce. This was a very nice gesture by the young people and they are to be congratulated for their thoughtfulness.

Good news from the Minor Hockey Club. Young men in charge of the Club have worked hard to raise money necessary to keep things going and have been pleased with the results. Four teams are participating in the games with the three older teams doing quite well and the younger boys showing promise. There is no Bantam team, not enough boys as yet but there is hope that a good Bantam team will be recruited in the near future.

THANK YOU

WITH OUR sincere appreciation, the family of the late Gordon Brown extend heartfelt thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbours for their many acts of kindness, love, prayers, phone calls and words of comfort, visits, beautiful floral tributes, cards of sympathy and memorial donations. Sincere thanks to Dr. Hayes for his excellent care, the V.O.N. for their dedicated care during Gord's illness, Homecare, Red Cross Homemakers, the Eagle Lake Women for providing the delicious lunch following the service, our special friends at Vasey Insurance for their patience, care and unending support, Pastor Brian Plouffe for his compassion and words of comfort and Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service. Special thanks to all of you. Marie Brown and family. 27-P-24

THANK YOU

THANKS to all the doctors, nurses and staff at Haliburton Hospital for their good care during my recent stay. Violet Robertson. 27-P-24

THANK YOU

I would like to thank family and friends for cards, phone calls and visits while I was a patient in Civic Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Rowsom and nursing staff, 4th floor. Royce Bain. 27-P-24

WE ACKNOWLEDGE with grateful thanks, the many tokens of sympathy and concern we received at the passing of our dear daughter and sister, Faye Greer. Your words and acts of kindness have been a source of comfort and strength. Roy, Ratha & Ross Bryant, Ruth Anne & Arnett Matthews. 27-P-24

THE FAMILY of the late Arthur Smith would like to thank the V.O.N., Ambulance Drivers, Nurses & Doctors of the Haliburton Hospital for the care given my dear husband Art. I wish to express special thanks to Dr. Dean Stokes for his constant care and concern; to Rev. Phillips for his many visits and comforting words; to the Masons for their moving service; to Cameron Monk for all his kindness and to the Park Lane ladies for the lovely lunch. The support of friends and relatives through cards, donations, food and floral tributes were greatly appreciated. Pearl Smith and family. 27-B-24

THE FAMILY of the late Therell Hills wish to express our sincere gratitude to relatives and friends for the many cards, donations, food, phone calls, flowers & assistance during our recent loss. Special thanks to Monmouth Fire Department, Dr. Hartwick & nurses of Haliburton Hospital for their quick response for medical and emotional support. Appreciation to those who organized and contributed to the luncheon at the Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre. Thanks to Reverend Rutter, Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, Minden. Your support and acts of kindness will always be remembered. Mary Hills & family. 27-P-24

IN MEMORIAM

ROBERTS, R. LEE In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away January 26, 1983. Too much loved, ever to be forgotten, wife Millie and family. 32-P-24

COWEN In loving memory of a dear husband and father BRIAN GRANT COWEN, who left us suddenly on January 2, 1987. As angels keep their watch up there, Please God, just let him know, That we down here do not forget. That we love and miss him so. Lovingly remembered by Colleen, daughter Sabrina and son Steven Cowen. 32-B-24

SMITH, DALE In loving memory of our beloved son Dale who left us suddenly January 27, 1990. Ten long and lonely years have passed, Since our great sorrow fell, The blow that we received that night, No one can ever tell, We did not see you close your eyes, Or hear your last faint sigh, We only knew that you were gone, Too late to say goodbye. When family ties are broken And loved ones have to part, It leaves a wound that never heals, And lonely broken hearts. Sadly missed and loved forever by Dad, Mom, Sisters Brenda & Lauren, Brother Carmen & Brother-in-Law Pete. 32-P-24

BURK In memory of a dear father and grandfather, EVERETT BURK, who passed away January 28, 1988. Some day we hope to meet again, Some day we know not when, To clasp his hand in the better land, Never to part again. Sadly missed by Marlene, Bev and family; and Garry, Kathy and family. 32-P-24

BURK—In memory of my dear husband, EVERETT BURK, who passed away January 28, 1988. There is someone who misses you sadly And finds the years long since you went There is someone who thinks of you often But tries to be brave and content. Lovingly remembered by wife Marvis. 32-P-24
